G. BRYAN PITTS INDICTED HERE AS EMBEZZLER

Former Smith Company Head Is Accused of Taking $1,136,000.

FINANCIER TO FACE HEARING IN CAPITAL

Two Other Indictments Are Still Pending Against Him.

INQUIRY INTO FIRM WILL BE CARRIED ON

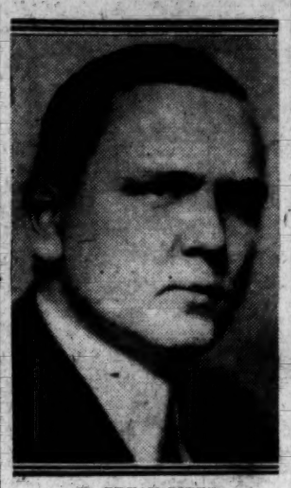
Alleged Defalcations Are Said to Cover Period of Three Years.



G. BRYAN PITTS.

G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board of the F. H. Smith Co., now of New York City but formerly of Washington, was indicted yesterday by the District of Columbia grand jury on charges of embezzling $1,136,000 of the company's funds.

Nugent Dodds, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, who has been conducting the case, declared that the Pitts indictment was but the first gun in the battle which the department is waging against the firm, its former officers and its former directors. The indictment followed less than a week's presentation of testimony. The investigation is by no way through, according to Mr. Dodds.

Mr. Pitts, who resigned following the grand jury's action in indicting him and several others who were the officers or directors of the organization on mail fraud charges, is now in Florida and the Department of Justice has instructed United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to institute proceedings looking toward his removal to the District for arraignment on the indictment.

Indicted on Perjury Count.

Prior to the mail fraud indictment, Mr. Pitts was indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with the bankruptcy of the Hamilton Hotel Co., said to have been a Smith Co. subsidiary. He is now on bond on that charge and also on the mail fraud count.

Neither Mr. Dodds nor Mr. Rover would hazard a guess yesterday as to the amount of bond that would be assessed Mr. Pitts in the new case, but it was understood that the bond would be very heavy, due to the large amount of the alleged peculation.

Shortly after the indictment was returned yesterday Mr. Dodds summarized the indictment as follows:

Indictment Is Summarized.

"That Mr. Pitts, over a period of three years, embezzled $1,136,000, largely by having checks put through the Smith Co. without names on the checks, and carried through the suspense account in the company, and the money sent by his personal Negro servant to the Southern Maryland Trust Co., in $1,000 bills, and deposited to his personal account. There were more than 100 counts in the indictment, amounts ranging from $1,000 to $155,000."

The investigation was begun last Monday. More than 50 witnesses were called and only a few of them were heard. The investigation is scheduled to be resumed Monday.

FIVE NEW YORK REDS HELD GUILTY IN RIOT

All Remanded for Sentence on Charge of Unlawful Assemblage.

TRIAL MOVES SWIFTLY

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—After a brief trial in which much of the defense testimony merely corroborated that of State witnesses, five Communists arrested in the Union Square riots of March 6 were convicted in Special Sessions Court today of unlawful assemblage. They were remanded until April 21.

The men convicted are William Z. Foster, national Communist leader; Robert Minor, editor of the Daily Worker; Israel Amter, local Communist organizer, and two jobless sailors, Joseph Lester and Harry Raymond.

The maximum penalty for the offense is three years imprisonment and $500 fine.

The verdict by the three judges who presided followed upon several motions for dismissal by Robert H. Elder, defense attorney. He contended, first, that the five men were entitled to a jury trial, and, furthermore, that "the assemblage was peaceable and of persons gathered for lawful purposes of protest and petition."

The rioting, in which 100 persons were injured, occurred when the Communists started to parade to City Hall in defiance of an order of Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen.

Foster frankly asserted on the witness stand today that he had made the speech which prompted the crowd to start to City Hall. He and Robert Minor, who preceded him on the stand, both corroborated the testimony of Commissioner Whalen earlier in the day that they had asked, and he had refused, permission to march.

Minor attempted to testify to brutal methods employed by the police in disperaing the crowd, but all statements on that subject were stricken from the record.

Eight French Soldiers Killed in Train Crash

Montbeliard, France, April 11 (A.P.).—Eight soldiers were killed and 33 injured in the derailment of a train at Laissey, between Montbeliard and Besancon, today.

The soldiers were members of the famous 152d Regiment, which was the most decorated one of the war.

Auto Victim, 64, Is Seriously Hurt

Baltimore Woman Is Held After Her Car Strikes Capital Man.

Clinton Lewis, 64 years old, living at 1927 Hamline street northeast, was struck by a car driven by Lustren Paige, 23-year-old colored woman, who gave her address as Baltimore, about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Eighteenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast, as he was crossing the street.

Lewis was taken to Sibley Hospital in a passing automobile, where he was found to be in a serious condition. He was unconscious at the time he was taken to the hospital, and at an early hour last night had not regained consciousness. It was feared that he had a fractured skull, and possible internal injuries.

The colored woman was sent to the House of Detention, where police of the Twelfth Precinct said she would be held pending the outcome of the condition of Lewis.

Medical Society Gets $1,000 in Barton Will

Dr. Wilfred M. Barton, prominent Washington physician, who died recently at Rochester, Minn., left a legacy of $1,000 to the District of Columbia Medical Society, according to his will which was filed yesterday for probate.

The residue of the estate is left to Mrs. Minnie Quinn Barton, the widow. The National Savings & Trust Co. is executor under the will.

BILLION STEEL MERGER VOTED OVER PROTEST

Youngstown Sheet and Tube to Fuse With Bethlehem.

OPPOSITION PLANS TO CARRY ON FIGHT

Stockholders' Meeting Is Thrown Into Turmoil by Locked Doors.

ALL ON INSIDE HELD PRISONER IN BALLOT

President Grace Welcomes New Investigators to Huge Corporation.

Youngstown, Ohio, April 11 (A.P.).—The billion dollar battle of industrial giants reached a climax here late today when Youngstown Sheet & Tube stockholders ratified merger of their company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

But opponents of the merger immediately announced that "the fight has just begun."

Announcement of the merger was made by inspectors at a stockholders' meeting, which a few minutes before, had been thrown into a turmoil when J. M. Woltz, Sheet & Tube safety director, ordered the doors closed of the meeting, holding stockholders, attorneys, company officials and newspaper reporters prisoners.

Court Fight Threatening.

The vote for the merger was 857,821 shares, 799,741 shares being necessary to assure it. The election inspectors did not indicate how many shares were protested or how many shares were voted against the merger.

Merger opponents will base their future court fights on a list of 91,000 shares which they announced have been protested.

Under terms of the merger agreement, Bethlehem will begin taking over Sheet & Tube immediately. Eugene G. Grace, Bethlehem president, released a statement from his office in New York declaring, however, that "every latitude of time will be allowed on our part to obtain authoritative determination of every legal question involved."

Attorneys for the merger proponents have also stated that consummation of the merger will not be attempted until all litigation is disposed of. Mr. Grace, in his statement, reiterated this.

Grace Issues Statement.

The Bethlehem president declared that James A. Campbell, 75-year-old chairman of Sheet & Tube, was faced from the start of the merger battle when it started early last month, with "an almost impossible situation."

"He found, at the outset," Mr. Grace said, "approximately 250,000 shares against him for reasons having no relationship to the merits of the merger but because the parties owning and controlling them had other plans and ambitions.

"In order to approve the merger, it was necessary to secure 800,000 votes out of a total of 950,000 remaining. That he (Campbell) should attempt to do so is evidence of his courage and confidence in the wisdom of his action. That he succeeded by a wide margin must be regarded as an outstanding accomplish-

Mercury Hits 91.5, Record Heat of Year

Behind the prosaic announcement of the Weather Bureau that the thermometer yesterday reached 91.5 lies the fact that it was the hottest day of the year. No heat prostrations were reported.

From 8 o'clock yesterday morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon the mercury rocketed from 47 to 91, according to official observer. From noon until 1 o'clock the mercury showed the greatest rise of the day, soaring 11 degrees, to 91. It reached its peak for the day at 2:30 p. m.

Beginning at 5 o'clock the thermometer was on the descent, sinking to 79 at 6 o'clock. Fair weather is promised for today with moderate southwest winds.

The kiosk in front of The Post Building showed the peak for the day at that point to be 96 degrees at 4 o'clock.

Accompanying the heat wave was a general exodus of parents and children to the parks. Office workers poured from buildings at noon to find surcease from the unrelenting sun in shady nooks. There was a general

BISHOP CANNON QUIZ URGED BY TINKHAM

Bay State House Member to Ask Senate Probe of Cleric's Activities.

PACIFIST INQUIRY LOOMS

A demand that the Senate lobby committee investigate the activities of Bishop James Cannon, jr., and the Southern Methodist Board of Temperance and Social Service, over which the bishop presides, is to be made next week by Representative George Holden Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts.

Mr. Tinkham has already induced the committee to promise an investigation of the Antisaloon League, the Federal Council of Churches, and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals (an agency of the Northern branch of the church), on the ground that these groups are seeking to establish a theocracy in the United States.

Yesterday he was assembling data about the Southern Methodist Board, as well as additional evidence regarding the Antisaloon League. He has been promised an opportunity to present these facts to the committee next week.

Mr. Tinkham wants the committee to try to ascertain who supports the Southern Methodist board in its attempts to influence Congress and to find out how its funds are expended.

The Cannon inquiry is believed to be loaded with potential political dynamite because of the bishop's active opposition to the candidacy of Gov. Smith in the South in 1928.

The Rev. Eugene L. Crawford, executive secretary of the Southern Methodist Board, has been an interested spectator during the Tinkham testimony before the lobby committee. Dr. Crawford is in charge of the board's Washington office, situated near the Capitol.

Bishop Cannon, at last reports, was in Africa attending to his duties as a missionary bishop. Early last year he was active in the Virginia primary campaign in which the anti-Smith group set up a ticket in opposition to the regular Democratic organization. However, the bishop sailed from Brazil several weeks before the election in which the anti-Smith forces suffered an overwhelming defeat.

(Associated Press.)

Investigation by the Senate lobby committee of Frederick J. Libby and the National Council for the Prevention of War was urged yesterday by Chairman Britten, of the House naval affairs committee.

Mr. Britten charged that Mr. Libby had issued "a secret call for the bombardment of the White House on April 12 by the pacifist groups of the country" with a view to influencing the action of the London naval conference."

Along with his formal statement, the Illinois member made public a letter which he said had been sent out by Mr. Libby to college presidents and members of the National Council asking them to urge the President to use his influence for further naval reduction.

$200,000 DEATH PLOT DETAILED IN CONFESSION

Wealthy Dentist Admits Part in Conspiracy, Sheriff Says.

INSURANCE SWINDLE ATTEMPTS EXPOSED

Other Murder Intrigue Unsuccessful, Signed Statement Says.

CHARGE OF SLAYING FACED BY ACCUSED

Man Is Found Killed After Policies Were Assigned to Retired Doctor.

Bentonville, Ark., April 11 (A.P.).—Sheriff Edgar Fields announced today that Dr. A. J. Bass, 55, wealthy retired dentist of Columbia, Mo., had made a confession in which he admitted having been the "master mind" in one unsuccessful insurance murder plot and was involved in another which was followed by the slaying of William Robert Pearman.

Bass is in jail here charged with first degree murder in the death of Pearman, 47, former Columbia mechanic, who was found slain near here two weeks ago. Bass held an assignment of $200,000 life insurance which Pearman took out under the assumed name of William Folta, a man who had been missing seventeen years from his Martinsburg, Mo., home. The insurance was assigned to Bass supposedly as collateral on a land deal in southwest Arkansas.

Prior to his confession, Bass released the insurance policies on Pearman's life and admitted, Fields said, the policies were taken out with intent to defraud. He admitted paying the first annual installment on the premium.

Confession Bares Intrigues.

Bass' statement revealed how he hired gunmen to kill M. J. Dorsey, of Hammond, Ind., head of the Northern States Life Insurance Co., in a $100,000 insurance swindle plot. This plot collapsed because one of the gunmen double-crossed him, Bass said, and Dorsey canceled the insurance before another gunman could execute a contract with Bass.

The announcement of the signing of the confession followed soon after an oral statement made by Dr. Bass to Sheriff Edgar Fields and other questioners had been made public. The signed statement incorporated practically all the details announced in the oral statement.

The statement consisted of seven typewritten pages and contained a story of intrigue and dealings with professional killers in three different insurance frauds and murder plots, the last of which ended in the death of Pearman who discarded his real identity as a garage mechanic at Columbia to assume the role of William Folta, a man missing seventeen years.

Realtor Is Exonerated.

Pearman took out four $50,000 insurance policies on his life under Folta's name and assigned them to Dr. Bass as collateral on a land deal in southwest Arkansas.

A short time before signing the confession he had previously made orally to Sheriff Fields and others, Dr. Bass signed an insurance statement releasing the policies he held in the name of Folta and in another signed statement exonerated S. K. Johnson, Kansas City real estate dealer, who was indicted with him in connection with the death of Pearman, of any part in the insurance plot. Johnson had acted as agent of the men in the Arkansas land deal.

In his oral statement Bass was quoted by the sheriff as saying that prior to the Indianapolis case he participated in a $25,000 insurance fraud scheme at Moline, Ill. He did not disclose details of the conspiracy, officers said.

Threatened by Gunmen.

The Pearman insurance plot, the statement said, grew out of the In-

HOOVER HAILS LONDON CONFERENCE RESULTS AS ENDING ARMS RACE

Naval Parley Jurists Begin Treaty Draft

Conference Attention Centered on Reception of Results in Europe and America While Leaders Analyze Accomplishments.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Jurists of the world's five strongest naval powers commenced today the arduous task of drafting the treaty negotiated at the London Naval Conference which few, if any, of them think can be ready by next Thursday, the day officially scheduled for its signature.

Meanwhile, attention was largely centered on the reception of conference results, here and abroad. First Lord of the Admiralty Albert Victor Alexander in a speech at Sheffield tonight claimed enormous reductions in the size and cost of the British and American fleets as the outcome of the conference.

These figures Alexander obtained by comparing the claims put forward by Great Britain, the United States and Japan at the Geneva conference three years ago with the programs now in prospect. At that time, he said, the total figure in auxiliary ships proposed for Great Britain and the United States was 590,000 tons, plus 25 per cent over age, a total of 737,500 tons to remain in force until 1936.

"The agreement now reached with America for these categories," he said, "is a total of 541,700 British tons by 1936, a reduction from the Geneva proposals of 195,800 tons. The American figure is now 526,000 tons, a reduction of 211,300 from the Geneva figures, and the Japanese figure of 367,050 tons is a saving of 114,200 tons compared with the figures proposed for Japan at Geneva."

Alexander put forward claims that the conference has achieved great reductions and savings all along the

19 BUS PASSENGERS ARE KILLED IN CRASH

Fast Mail Train Mangles Victims in Collision on Grade Crossing.

THREE NOT IDENTIFIED

Isleta, N. Mex., April 11 (A.P.).—A fast Santa Fe mail train today crushed a Pickwick Greyhound motor stage, killing 19 persons, all passengers on the bus.

The accident was the worst in the history of Western bus transportation. The train sideswiped the stage as the driver tried frantically to swing it clear of the oncoming locomotive and the terrific impact so mangled the bodies of the victims that late today identification of three had not been made. Ten persons were known to be injured.

Pickwick Greyhound officials tonight determined that with 10 injured listed in hospitals here and 19 known dead the 29 persons on the bus when the accident occurred here were accounted for.

Two survivors said the driver slowed up, but failed to stop at the crossing.

Demolished by the collision, the bus was ignited by flames which licked over it from the gasoline tank and the bodies of the victims were robbed of clothing by the fire which, in some instances, charred the flesh.

Two bodies and parts of the bus were carried half a mile by the speeding train, which stopped half a mile past the crossing where the tragedy occurred.

Neither the Pickwick Greyhound office at Los Angeles, from which the bus departed at 11:59 p. m. Wednesday, eastbound for Denver, nor the bus driver carried identification for the passengers. The names of the victims were obtained from bits of personal effects which escaped the ravages of the flames.

The sudden crash stunned the sur-

PARKER'S APPROVAL SEEN, DESPITE FOES

Supreme Court Nominee Is Favorably Reported as Borah Objects.

SENATE 'PANIC' REMAINS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

A threatening political fire that has been smoldering against Judge John J. Parker, recently named to the Supreme Court, broke into the open yesterday, but it is believed that it will be put out.

It has reached such proportions, however, that several administration senators have become panicky and besought President Hoover to withdraw his name. It was a subject of discussion yesterday between Vice President Curtis and the President. Whether the Vice President joined the clamor or made any recommendation, however, could not be learned. He remained with Mr. Hoover some time after the usual biweekly Cabinet conference.

The trouble has been stirred up by the Association for the Advancement of the Colored Race on the ground that when Judge Parker was the Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina in 1920, he said something about the Negro not yet being ready to take up the responsibility of citizenship.

This opposition is in addition to that of the American Federation of Labor, which is based on a decision written by the judge upholding the so-called yellow dog contract, an issue between the West Virginia miners and coal operators.

This is to be the basis of Senator Borah's opposition. Senator Borah voted against the judge yesterday in the consideration by the judiciary subcommittee. The nomination was ordered favorably reported, however, by a vote of two to one, Senators Hebert, of Rhode Island, and Overman, of North Carolina, voting for confirmation. The subcommittee

Final Abolition of Naval Competition Brought About, He Says.

ENVOYS OF POWERS ARE CONGRATULATED

U. S. Saves More Than $1,000,000,000 by Pact, Is Belief.

NO POLITICAL PACTS HAVE BEEN ENTERED

Parity in Battleships With Britain Attained by United States.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover regards the London naval conference as a final success and has given his approval and conveyed his congratulations to the American delegation and to the delegations of the other governments represented. A prepared statement issued by the President at the White House has summarized in general terms the features which Mr. Hoover has desired to stress in connection with the three-power agreement.

Final abolition of competition in naval arms between the greatest naval powers is established by the agreement, according to the statement.

By comparing the cost of future construction with the cost which would have resulted from American acceptance of British terms at the Geneva conference of 1927, the President states that American will save a billion dollars and that there will be a saving of $2,500,000,000 to the combined naval powers.

No Political Undertakings.

In the matter of reductions the President states that it is difficult to estimate precise savings, but he characterizes [illegible] as a great step in world peace and an assurance of American parity. No political undertakings have been entered into excepting an agreement to regulate submarine warfare.

No disappointment is indicated by the President over the failure of a five-power naval pact, and the President states that he has all along thought a five-power naval pact highly improbable.

No mention is made in the President's statement of the reported contingent or elastic clause under which the British figures of limitation may be increased in proportion to future French naval building. The President deals with the agreement as a definite agreement between the three powers but does not include some of the important features which are of particular interest to the Senate. Until further definite information is available it will be impossible to forecast what the reaction of the Senate will be or what will be the outlook for ratification.

Hoover's Detailed Statement.

In his statement, the President said:

"I am greatly pleased with the final success of the Naval Arms Conference in London and I have today telegraphed the delegation expressing my approval of the result achieved and my admiration for their patience and determination in an arduous and difficult negotiation. And I wish to congratulate the delegations of the other governments for their constructive and courageous action.

"The most vital feature of its great accomplishments for peace is the final abolition of competition in naval arms between the greatest naval powers and the burial of the fears and suspicions which have been the constant product of rival warship construction. It will be recalled that prior to the three-power conference at Geneva in 1927, which France and Italy felt obliged to decline attendance, there was naval competition in all craft except battleships with constant international friction. ## "Attic Lover" Is Indicted In Death Eight Years Ago

Sanhuber Held Without Bail in Slaying of Oesterreich.

Los Angeles, April 11 (A.P.).—Otto Sanhuber, confessed slayer of Fred Oesterreich, wealthy Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturer, and admitted clandestine lover of Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, was indicted by the county grand jury today for murder of the man eight years ago.

County authorities said that Sanhuber in the confession admitted he had lived for eighteen years in secret chambers under the eaves of the homes of Oesterreich in Milwaukee and Los Angeles. It was from one of these, he was quoted as confessing, that he ran to shoot down Oesterreich during a family quarrel here the night of August 22, 1922.

He admitted also that he had locked Mrs. Oesterreich in a closet, where she was found unconscious, to lead police to believe that a burglar, as the manufacturer's widow told police, shot Oesterreich.

After the indictment was returned in superior court, Sanhuber was hur-

Tiger's Last Book Accuses America of Materialism

Clemenceau Paints Wilson as Visionary Who Did His Utmost.

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—George Clemenceau's last sharp retort to his late antagonist, Marshal Ferdinand Foch, will be published in book form here tomorrow under the title, "Grandeur and Misery of Victory."

Writing beside his death-bed, the French Tiger has taken the ghost of the allies' generalissimo to task for "recriminations and abuse" and accused America of greedy materialism. The Treaty of Versailles, to the wartime minister of France, who died only recently on completion of this final book, was mutilated by America's "separate peace."

President Wilson is seen as a visionary, with an insufficient knowledge of Europe to carry out his ideology. And Gen. Pershing comes in for comment for what Clemenceau called a "fanatical determination to delay the arrival of the Star-Spangled Banner on the battlefield." For this delay in the employment of the quently upon the failure of that conference the rival expansion received even new impulses and resulted in increased international suspicion and ill-will through the world and a steady drift to greatly increased navies.

Five-Power Pact Improbable.

"When I initiated this negotiation it was after a critical examination of the experience before and after the Geneva conference and a determination that the causes of that failure could be met with adequate preparation and preliminary negotiation. At that time we realized, and have realized at all times since, that the particular setting of the continental nations, because of the inseparable importance of land armies in their bearing upon naval strength, together with the political agreements that reduction of such sums implied, made a five-power agreement extremely improbable, as the United States could not involve itself in such agreements. The French and Italian governments have shown the utmost good will in this conference in endeavor, in the interest of world peace, to support the present solution just as far as they could do so, and they have joined the present agreement in important provisions.

"It is difficult to estimate the precise reductions in warcraft tonnage which has been brought about by this agreement because of the factor of normal replacement and additional tonnage authorized but not yet constructed. Nine battleships are to be scrapped of a total of about 230,000 tons, the replacement of 16 or 17 others to be deferred for six years. The various navies in the agreement are to reduce some 300,000 to 400,000 tons of other categories in the next few years as they become obsolete—but some categories of some of them must be increased in order to come up to the standards set. The net balance will be a very considerable decrease in the world's actual tonnage as it stands today.

Economic Importance of Parley.

"The economic importance of the accomplishment can best be measured in terms of the situation developed at the Geneva Conference. That conference broke down upon the feeling of the British representatives that it was necessary for them to create or maintain a navy of a total of nearly 1,500,000 tons. Their prewar navy was much larger than this. The American delegates were not able to agree to this basis, as it implied such a huge amount of naval construction in the United States that it was hopeless to expect public support, and it meant a perpetually inferior navy.

"The British suggestions at Geneva were approximately:

"1. Maintain the battleships as provided in the Washington treaty, of which the British battle fleet then stood at 606,000 tons, and the American battle fleet of 525,000 tons.

"2. Aircraft carriers as in the Washington treaty at a maximum of 135,000 tons.

"3. A cruiser tonnage of about 450,000 tons in 70 cruisers.

"4. Although actual figures were little discussed the conservations appear to have indicated a destroyer tonnage of about 225,000 to 250,000 tons, and a submarine tonnage of about 75,000 tons, or a total fleet of nearly 1,500,000 tons on a British basis, or 1,420,000 American basis, owing to our inferiority in battleship tonnage through the Washington Arms treaty.

Cost U. S. Billion.

"If this fleet had been adopted as the basis of parity, it would have cost the United States somewhere, upon different calculations, from $1,400,000,000 to $1,750,000,000 for replacements and new construction to attain it with greatly increased maintenance cost.

"The present agreement calls for parity of American and British fleets of approximately:

"1. A battleship basis, each of us of about 460,000 tons, but no replacements for next six years on either side.

"2. Aircraft carriers as in Washington arms treaty at a maximum of 135,000 tons.

"3. A cruiser basis of 339,000 tons if the United States exercises the option of the same types as Great Britain, but, if the United States builds a larger ratio of the large cruisers, our tonnage would be 328,000. It represents a reduction of about 20 ships in the basis of the British cruisers fleet.

"4. Destroyer tonnage of 150,000 tons and a submarine tonnage of 52,700 tons each.

Scrap Three Battleships.

"That is a total fleet basis of, roughly, about 1,136,000 tons (slightly less if we build the larger cruisers) as compared with about 1,500,000-ton British basis of the Geneva conference, shows a reduction of about 364,000 tons below that basis to the United States and Great Britain and a proportional reduction to Japan. In bringing this about the British scrap four 8-inch gun cruisers and five battleships, while we scrap three battleships, thus bringing about parity in battleships which was not attained in the Washington agreement. The Japanese navy under the proposed agreement will amount to something near 800,000 tons. These results are to be arrived at by scrapping, by obsolescence and by construction in some categories prior to 1936 when a renewed conference is to take place.

"The cost to the United States of replacements and new construction during the next six years until the further conference will be (under various estimates) from $550,000,000 to $650,000,000 as compared to a sum, as I have said, of between $1,400,000,000 to $1,640,000,000 to attain parity on the Geneva basis. To this latter would need be added the additional cost of maintenance and operating which would make the saving upon the present basis as compared to the Geneva up to $1,000,000,000 in the next six years.

"The savings are not alone to the United States but to Great Britain and Japan as well. The total savings to the world is perhaps $2,500,000,000 below the Geneva basis to which the world was steadily drifting. This sum devoted to reproductive enterprise will be a great stimulus to world prosperity.

"There are no political undertakings of any kind in the present treaty except an agreement for the regulation of the conduct of submarines against merchant ships in time of war. The whole agreement is a great step in world peace and an assurance of American parity in naval strength."

line among the three powers, but sounded a warning that the British admiralty will demand a safeguarding clause in the treaty permitting increase in the British ratio in destroyers if the French carry out their announced intention of building 100,000 tons of submarines.

"It should, of course, be recognized," he said, "that each of the parties to the three-power agreement will have to be covered by the terms of the treaty in such a way that they may adjust their position if the construction programs of other powers outside the agreement should make that necessary. For example, our reduced destroyer tonnage would be materially affected by an increase of submarine tonnage elsewhere."

Alexander called reduction of the three powers from the Geneva figures of 521,300 tons between them a "very significant indication of the progress of public opinion in the direction of disarmament." This reduction, he went on, does not include the savings resulting from the battleship holiday and the earlier scrapping of five British, three American and one Japanese battleships.

Analyzing the saving effected to Great Britain up to 1936 by the three-power treaty the first lord of the admiralty said:

"It is safe to estimate the total saving at at least between $292,600,000 and $340,200,000." He added, "I think in such circumstances it is futile for anyone to describe this conference as a failure. Rather it is to be described as a tremendous advance on the road to disarmament."

When the heads of the delegations met this morning they found some difference of opinion as to the form the treaty should take. The French wanted the agreement on a method of naval limitation and on such technical points as the unit size of submarines and the definition of special classes of ships exempt from limitation embodied, not in a treaty, but in a separate declaration to be taken to Geneva. The American, British and Japanese desire these subjects to form part of the treaty itself.

The Italians supported the French, but for different reasons, claiming that Italy objects to agreements on these abstract topics and has throughout formulated objections to the steps taken. All five powers agreed, however, that the submarine humanization agreement shall stand as part of the treaty and all five powers will sign this here.

Treaty Details Speculative.

These facts indicate that the drafting committee appointed today will not have an easy time, as there is yet no agreement on the form of the treaty, or what is to be put in or what left out. All details about the treaty, other than general indications already furnished, are highly speculative. Drafts abound, but what will come out of the test of comparing the drafts between the jurists of the five powers remains to be seen. Different views are expressed in different camps and these change from hour to hour. Even on such important matters as the form of the safeguarding or escalator clause in the three-power treaty Prime Minister MacDonald is said to have changed his mind three times already.

The United States Lines will delay the sailing of the Leviathan, scheduled for April 22, until April 24 to enable the American delegation to sail for home on her if the treaty has to go over Easter before it is ready for signature.

When the drafting committee was formed today, Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow was designated as its American member. Commander Harold C Train and J. Theodore Marriner, of the State Department, were named members of a parallel committee of experts to which the drafting committee will refer technical matters.

Meeting Is Cordial.

The experts met this afternoon, Mr. Morrow and George Rublee acting for the United States. The meeting was cordial. There were no disagreements. The British, Americans and French explained their viewpoints in the most general terms. The Japanese and Italians listened, and then the meeting adjourned, without argument, to begin its real task tomorrow.

These drafting troubles, while formidable in detail, are not regarded as of supreme importance, since they refer to the five-power trimmings and not to the three-power kernel of the treaty, which is what chiefly matters. It is not thought of great importance by any power what form the five-power undertakings finally assume, so long as there are no disputes or ill-feelings aroused. All this will take much time, however.

The most important point remaining, indeed, the only one unsettled in the three-power pact, is the text of the clause giving the nations concerned the right to increase their building if alarmed by the building of a nonsignatory power—in this case, meaning France, Italy or both.

Want Building Rights.

The Americans would prefer a clause similar to Article XXI of the Washington treaty of 1921-22, which provides for the calling of a conference and all-around agreement before naval schedules can be altered. This places a veto power over increased building in the hands of any of the parties. But the British are likely to insist upon the right to build if they feel they must without a conference, although they may agree to calling a conference with the United States and Japan, provided they retain the right of building independently of the views of the other two.

In the ultimate form of this clause lies the chief danger to the three-power treaty in the United States Senate, it is felt here, and the Americans are most hopeful that the British will not, in fact, build against the French in excess of treaty figures. An admiralty hint that this will be done is found in Alexander's speech tonight, but on the other side, Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden is believed to have said he would not permit any more building than the treaty provides while he is at the treasury.

British Not Pleased.

On the whole, British opinion seems not pleased, but relieved, both that the conference has ended without a general row and that an accord with the United States and Japan is an accomplished fact. Press comment puts a more optimistic front on the situation than general informed comment in parliament and out of it, though perhaps such speeches as Alexander's tonight will cheer people up. There is, of course, an equally persuasive pessimist view which will shortly be argued by Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer and former First Lord of the Admiralty.

Discounting political pronouncements, the British can not be expected to be as pleased as the Americans because they were led to expect a five-power agreement and they see France and Italy parting, not shaking fists, as seemed the horrible prospect, a month ago, but without settling anything. Further negotiations between France, Great Britain and Italy may or may not continue, but not much hope is felt in their getting anywhere, anyway while Franco-Italian rivalry has been embittered.

Lord Dewar Dies; Whisky Magnate

Famous Distiller, 66, Was Abstainer; Noted for Ready Wit.

East Grinsted, Sussex, England, April 11 (A.P.).—Lord Dewar, head of the famous whisky distilling firm of John Dewar & Sons, Ltd., died unexpectedly today at the Homestall, his residence here.

Lord Dewar, who was 66 years old, had been confined to the house for some days with a chill, but his condition was not regarded as serious. He relapsed in the afternoon and died shortly afterward.

Although head of one of the world's great whisky producing companies, Lord Dewar himself was a nondrinker. He was famed for his wit and was in especial demand as an after-dinner speaker. One time, it is related, Lord Dewar sat beside a young woman at an athletic event. She was very proud of her hyphenated name.

"My name is Smythe-Smythe, with a hyphen," she said.

"Oh," said Lord Dewar, "mine is Dewar, Dewar, with a siphon."

Utilities Group Drops Taxi Problem for Time

The somewhat complicated taxicab situation probably will be left as it is for the time being, it was said at the Public Utilities Commsson yesterday, pending the action of Congress on the legislation requested by the commission extending and making more complete its control over taxicabs in the District.

The commission wants Congress to empower it to require applicants for permission to operate taxicabs to obtain from the commission a certificate of necessity and convenience.

CONFEREES UNITED ON WOOL SCHEDULE

Tariff Bill Provisions Are Agreed Upon by Members of Joint Group.

SENATE CHANGES PASS

(Associated Press.)

After agreeing upon the Senate duty of 7 cents a pound on long staple cotton, now on the free list, the congressional conferees on the tariff bill yesterday reached an accord on the entire wool schedule providing increased protection for the growers and manufacturers.

While both Senate and House bills carried higher duties on raw and processed wool all down the line, including clothing, the Senate raised the House rates in many instances. In general the conferees accepted the Senate changes.

However, a new subsection was added to the clothing wool paragraph providing for lower duties than now in force on raw wool not finer than 44's. These are the coarser wools that go into the manufacturing of cheap clothing and sometimes into carpets and rugs when the lower grades are scarce. Heretofore, coarse wools between 40's and 44's have taken the same rate as finer clothing wools.

3-cent Increase Is Provided.

The 3-cent-a-pound increase in the existing 31-cent-a-pound tariff on raw clothing wool of the finer variety was not in dispute in conference, both houses having provided for this raise.

One of the victories won by the House placed a rate of 40 cents a pound and 75 per cent on wool felt hat bodies and a 25 cents an article addition to these rates on blocked or trimmed bodies and finished felt hats. The Senate had made the rate on all 33 cents a pound and 50 per cent.

The principal Senate increases accepted were on wool waste of all kinds and wool rags. The latter commodity, chiefly the type imported from abroad, is used to a large extent in the manufacture of cheap grade woolen articles, including clothing. It was given a rate of 18 cents a pound as against 8 cents in the House bill.

Senate Conferees Recede.

The Senate conferees receded and allowed House provisions to go in to permit importers of coarse wools to bring it up to 10 per cent of wools not finer than 44's in each bale or package of wools not finer than 40's, and up to 10 per cent of wool not finer than 46's in each bale or package of wools not finer than 44's.

The carpet wool section was broadened to provide refunding of duties if within three years from date of importation proof is furnished that the wool has been used in the manufacture of carpets, press cloth, camel's hair belting, and knit or felt boots or heavy fulled lumbermen's socks.

Albert Capone Arrested On Vagrancy Charges

Miami Beach, Fla., April 11 (A.P.).—Albert Capone, reputed to be a brother of "Scarface" Al Capone, was arrested on vagrancy charges today by Miami Beach police.

Mr. Capone made cash bond of $200 for his appearance tomorrow. Mr. Capone was arrested here March 20, following a raid on the palatial Palm Island residence of Al Capone. He was booked then on a vagrancy charge, and is at liberty under $500 bond prior to arraignment. Chief of Police Wood said he had no statement to make tonight regarding the arrest, except that it was based on complaints of golfers on the course, where Mr. Capone was playing when arrested.

Borah Raps Hoover Stand On Tariff Debenture Plan

Idaho Senator in Martinsburg Speech Takes Issue With President Over Feature of Measure Opposed by Chief Executive; Campaign Pledge Recalled.

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 11 (A.P.).—Taking issue with President Hoover over the export debenture plan of farm relief, Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, said tonight that if this provision is taken from the tariff bill it would "break the solemn pledges made by both parties" to restore equality to agriculture.

"This debenture contest will determine for a time at least," the Idahoan told a meeting of the Martinsburg Fruit Exchange, "whether those in power are willing to adjust our tariff system so that it will apply to all."

The export debenture was put into the tariff bill by the Senate coalition of Western Republican Independents and Democrats over the expressed opposition of President Hoover. The same coalition twice voted it into the Hoover farm measure but it was finally rejected. The provision is a subject of dispute now between Senate and House conferees on the tariff.

"If the beneficiaries of the protective tariff system can not reconcile themselves to a debenture for agriculture," said Mr. Borah, "there is another way by which we can do something toward restoring equality between industry and agriculture. We can reduce some of the unconscionable rates which now enable industry to charge exorbitant prices for what the farmer has to pay.

"We have rates sufficiently high now behind which monopoly prices can be charged. Reduce those and the prices will be more reasonable, and such a course would be, in my judgment, more helpful to agriculture than the debenture itself."

PREFERRED STATUS GIVEN AIRPORT BILL

Bingham Measure Accorded Legislative Right of Way by Senate Group.

ACTION IN 10 DAYS SEEN

The Bingham bill to establish a municipal airport for Washington was given preferred status on the Senate's legislative program late yesterday.

Senator Guy Goff (Republican), of West Virginia, announced that the steering committee had listed the airport bill third in the list of measures that are to be given the right of way.

This means that the bill probably will be acted upon within ten days.

Provisions of Bill.

The bill provides for a Federal loan of $2,500,000 to the District government for establishment of the airport, the money to be repaid without interest a year after it is spent.

The airport would be created out of what is now the Hoover Field and Washington Airport, and a part of the experimental farm of the Department of Agriculture. To this also would be added a waterway area between Hoover Field and Columbia Island, which it is proposed to fill in.

In the hearings on the bill, conducted by the Senate District committee, the two principal trade bodies presented a divided front.

Hinton Opposed Bill.

Lieut. Walter Hinton, of the Chamber of Commerce, opposed the bill on the ground that it would be too small and because he favored the Gravelly Point site.

Lawrence E. Williams, of the Board of Trade, who himself had once been for the Gravelly Point site, lauded the Bingham bill, and declared that the taxpayers in his organization are ready to do their share in paying the bill.

Charles I. Stengle, of the Citizens Advisory Council, also opposed the bill, but the committee was most impressed by the arguments of Mr. Williams. The bill was approved yesterday by the Board of Governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

Dry Attitude Kept By Mrs. McCormick

Disagrees With Hoover on Question of World Court Adherence.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for senator from Illinois, said after a conference with Pesident Hoover yesterday that she had "always been dry and there is no reason to change." The woman candidate's word was in response to questions concerning the antiprohibition stand of her Democratic opponent, former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis.

"The campaign starts in September and during September and October we'll have plenty to say." She repeated with emphasis "plenty to say!" "I am entirely with President Hoover on his law enforcement program," Mrs. McCormick added.

After an hour's conference with the President Mrs. McCormick told newspapermen that "we most amicably agreed to disagree" on the question of American adherence to the World Court.

Sessions Planned By Loyal Dames

Representative Holaday, of Illinois, will make the principal address. Invocation will be given by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives. A musical program will be given by the Army Band.

Mrs. Wellington Q. Hunt, of Detroit, national president, will lay a floral tribute at the base of the statue in the name of the society. Wreaths will also be placed by the Illinois State Association and the Iowa Circle Citizens Association. Rear Admiral Frederick C. Bullard was the principal speaker at a banquet last night in the Willard Hotel held by the society. Delegates were present from ten States.

Couple Files Petition For Adoption of Boy

The boy, according to the petition, was born in a Philadelphia hospital April 10, 1928, and was given into their care fifteen days later. Parents of the child have consented to the adoption, it was brought out. Attorney Warren E. Miller appears for the petitioners.

FIGURES OF CENSUS WILL BE MADE ISSUE

Proponents and Opponents of District Suffrage Prepare Fight.

LEADERS GIVE OPINIONS

Advocates and opponents of suffrage for Washington are expected to make an issue of the present census enumeration to determine how many persons in the District vote in their home States, it was learned last night.

Those in favor of a vote for residents of the District will point to figures from the census as a further illustration of how many citizens of the United States do not vote. Opponents of suffrage in the district are preparing to fight the census figures on the grounds that they do not offer a true picture of the situation, it was learned.

Leaders of the opposing side expressed the opinion yesterday that a careful canvass is not being made of residents of the District who are voters. J. Sterling Moran, supervisor of the census in the District, heatedly contested this charge with the assertion that all enumerators have been required to ask residents if they have voting privileges.

Supervisor Moran asks any voters who are residents who have been overlooked to communicate with the Census Bureau before April 15 so that they may be included in the voting population of the District.

House Aims Bills At Gangster Guns

Firearms Manufacturers Say Citizens Are Hit by Legislation.

(Associated Press.)

Bills designed to make it more difficult for gangsters to get guns were taken under consideration yesterday by a House interstate commerce subcommittee. Representatives of firearms manufacturers had testified the bills "aim at the crook and hit the honest citizen."

The proposals would divest firearms shipments of their character as subjects of interstate commerce and make them subject to State and local police powers.

Representative McLeod (Republican), Michigan, author of two of the bills, complained that a Detroit gangster, denied purchase of a gun in his home town because of past police record, could write to Chicago and order one sent to him by express. Firearms laws in 46 of the 48 States could not counteract this "loophole in the lax Federal laws," he said.

Chief ThundercloudDies After Fall From Glider

Bristow from Tepic, Mexico, to Mazatlan, Mexico, shortly before daylight this morning, according to a message received by the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman from Merele Blakely, Oklahoman correspondent with the Bristow party.

DORMITORIES DEALT FINAL SENATE BLOW

Move to Retain Government Hotels for Another Year Defeated.

OFFICES BILL IS PASSED

An attempt to prolong the life of the so-called Government Hotels between the Capitol and Union Station was defeated in the Senate yesterday just before the independent offices appropriation bill was passed.

Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, offered an amendment to continue the hotels for another year, but it was defeated on an "aye" and "nay" vote.

The hotels, which were erected to house the army of women clerks who came to Washington during the World War, are being razed to make way for a magnificent plaza between the Capitol and Union Station. The buildings directly opposite the Senate Office Building have already been torn down.

The independent officers appropriation bill carries funds to maintain the Veterans' Bureau, the Interstate Commerce Commission and other bureaus and commissions during the fiscal year of 1931.

It also carries an appropriation of $1,000,000 for continuing the construction of the Arlington Memorial Bridge. The measure now goes to a Senate and House conference.

House Committee Ends Muscle Shoals Hearing

(Associated Press.)

Public hearings on measures to dispose of Muscle Shoals were completed by the House military affairs committee yesterday with testimony by experts of the Department of Agriculture that the great Government plant was now of little value for fertilizer production.

The committee has arranged to meet behind closed doors Tuesday to begin consideration of the Norris resolution for Government operation of Muscle Shoals and several other measures on the subject. Yesterday it had expected to hear Secretary Hyde, but he was unable to attend, and sent instead Dr. A. F. Woods, the department's director of scientific work, and other fertilizer experts.

AMOS 'N' ANDY SIGN CONTRACT IN TALKIE

R-K-O Picture Effort May Net $1,000,000 for Radio Stars.

TO SHARE IN PROFITS

Amos 'n' Andy are going into the talkies.

"Check and Double Check" probably will be the name of the vehicle which will be produced by Radio Pictures.

The contract which will result in Amos 'n' Andy being seen as well as heard by millions of Americans was signed in Chicago yesterday, it was announced by the National Broadcasting Co. Joseph I. Schnitzer, president of Radio Pictures, and B. B. Kahane, vice president and general counsel of R-K-O, negotiated the contract by arrangement with the NBC Artists Service.

The starting date for the production will be announced shortly, as will details of the Amos 'n' Andy film.

The announcement that Radio Pictures has signed Amos 'n' Andy, Freeman R. Cosden and Charles J. Correll in private life, ended what has been termed the most spirited bidding for talent since the birth of motion pictures. Every important film company had made competitive offers for the two phenomenal radio stars.

The exact amount to be paid Amos 'n' Andy for the picture can not be determined because the contract provides them with a share of the profits. If the picture approaches the success of Amos 'n' Andy on the air their share of the profits will be close to $1,000,000, it was estimated. Nine months ago their income was approximately $100 a week. That was before their debut on the NBC network.

NBC executives stressed the fact that the picture work would in no way interfere with the regular broadcasts of the pair.

Writers in Capital Honor Lewis Wood

White House Association of Correspondents Holds Annual Election.

Lewis Wood of the New York Times was elected president over Oliver B. Lerche of the Wall Street Journal at the election yesterday of the White House Correspondents Association. Woods received 86 votes and Lerch 55. He succeeds Wilbur Forest, of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Thomas J. Healy, of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, was elected vice president without opposition, succeeding Carlisle Bargeron, of The Post.

George L. Tarry, of the Wall Street Journal, was elected secretary-treasurer, defeating Leo Sacks, of the Scripps-Howard Alliance, and Tom Edmunds, of the United States Daily, and Robert Allen, of the Christian Science Monitor, were elected to the executive committee.

Infidelity Is Charged As Woman Asks Divorce

Mrs. Dorothy F. Hunt, of Round Hill, Va., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking an absolute divorce from William H. Hunt, of Purcellville, Va.

Mr. Hunt, according to the wife, has been guilty of infidelity since his alleged desertion in October, 1929. The wife charges that her husband has not properly supported his family and tells the court that recently she had him indicted for non-support. He is now a fugitive, she asserts. The couple was married May 3, 1922.

Rudy Vallee's Former Wife Marries U. S. Naval Officer

Former Leonia Cauchois McCoy, Who Wed Crooner After Whirlwind Courtship, Admits Being Bride of Lieutenant at Air Station.

Lakewood, N. J., April 11 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Leonia Cauchois McCoy, whose second husband was Rudy Vallee, is now the wife of Lieut. Howard Nixon Coulter, U. S. N., it became known today. In their apartment here, Mrs. Coulter admitted that they were married a little over a week ago. She declined to tell the exact date, the placec of the marriage or where the marriage license was obtained. Coulter is attached to the naval air station at Lakewood.

Mrs. Coulter, who gave her age as 28 and that of her husband as 30, is a daughter of the late Frederick Cauchois, formerly a wealthy coffee and real estate man. She married Frank McCoy 3d, in 1923, and their five-year-old daughter, Gloria, now lives with her.

The couple were married at the municipal building there six days later after a whirlwind courtship which included Vallee's singing to her over the radio. Shortly after she applied in White Plains for an annulment of her marriage to Vallee and this was granted the latter part of July, 1928.

Lieut. Coulter obtained a divorce in Las Vegas, N. Mex., last November, she said, and has the custody of his five-year-old daughter, Patricia.

Quiz Into Senators' Moneys Is Delayed

Refusal of Johnson to Act as Chairman Holds Up Investigation.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate's inquiry into the campaign chests of senatorial candidates was delayed yesterday with the announcement by Senator Johnson (Republican), California, that his many other duties would forbid his acceptance of the chairmanship of the investigating committee.

Informed of Senator Johnson's decision, Vice President Curtis deferred selection of a successor and immediately leaders of all factions in the Senate called on the Californian to urge that he reconsider.

While Senator Johnson was insisting last night that his word would have to be final, friends were hopeful that he would yield to their urging. Meanwhile, other members appointed by the Vice President were marking time and some intimated that their decision to serve would depend on the selection of a chairman.

Other members appointed to the committee are Senators Goldsborough, Maryland, and Patterson, Missouri, Republicans, and Pittman, Nevada, and Wagner, New York, Democrats.

OLGA EIDE EDWARDS ON STAND IN TRIAL

Bares Early Relations With Traction Magnate, Who Accuses Her.

STATE RESTS ITS CASE

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—Regaining her composure after a false start on the witness stand today, Olga Eide Edwards, on trial charged with extorting money from Nathan L. Amster, told a general sessions jury of her early relations with the elderly millionaire traction magnate. Miss Edwards said that she first met Amster, whom she alleges is the father of her 6-year-old son, in October, 1917, after she came to New York from San Francisco to follow a theatrical career.

She was told that Amster was connected with the theater, she testified, and could find her an engagement. Amster made "passionate love" to her on that first meeting, she continued, and asked to see her again later that night. Her relations with Amster on the second meeting were of an "intimate nature," she said, and he promised to help her get a position.

"After that, when did you see him again?" James D. C. Murray, her attorney, asked.

"He stayed around New York several days after; then he told me he lived in Boston and had to return home," she answered. When he next visited New York, she added, he telephoned her and she met him again.

At this point the court ordered an adjournment until next Tuesday.

Miss Edwards had been called as the first defense witness, but she sobbed hysterically when her son, Lee, was brought into the courtroom, and she was forced to retire. She returned to the stand after two attorneys, who represented her when Amster drew up a $100,000 trust agreement for her in February, 1927, testified.

The attorneys merely told of the conferences they held with Max D. Steuer, attorney for Amster, prior to the execution of the agreement, under which Miss Edwards was to receive a $500 monthly income, and which Amster now is endeavoring to have revoked.

The prosecution had closed its case early in the afternoon after having called 10 witnesses. Lyle Stackpole, an actress, was among the last witnesses called.

CLEMENCEAU LAYS CHARGE OF GREED AGAINST AMERICA

American forces, Clemenceau largely blamed Foch's "hesitancies and temperings of authority."

"The marshal," he wrote, "had the power to command. On his own admission he preferred to 'suggest.'"

It was largely on the reputation Foch made at the battle of the Yser, which checked a German advance in 1914 that Clemenceau, as Minister of war, recommended the marshal in April, 1918, for the supreme command of the allied armies. He took command April 14.

Then the "rather serious disagreement with Gen. Pershing" developed.

"The American troops," Clemenceau said, "in the first rank as far as bravery is concerned, were first and foremost excellent soldiers in a state of mere improvisation."

During the spring of 1918, Clemenceau said, he importuned Gen. Pershing to send into action in the French ranks "the first American contingents that were considered sufficiently trained, so as to relieve us as much as possible at the sharpest pinch of such a crisis of manpower as our armies had never known before."

But Pershing "owed it to the romantic side of America's intervention to form a self-contained American army, a duty I never failed to acknowledge.

"His Government, his country, his army even, kept him in suspense, and the more I insisted the more the American general resisted."

Clemenceau also accused Foch of insubordination in refusing to transmit a telegram containing a summons to the plenipotentiaries of Germany to Versailles to receive the text of the peace preliminaries fixed by the allies.

As for President Wilson, "he acted to the very best of his abilities in circumstances the origins of which had escaped him and whose ulterior developments lay beyond his ken."

Col. Edward House, he saw as "a supercivilized person escaped from the wilds of Texas, who sees everything, who understands everything and, while never doing anything but what he thinks fit, knows how to gain the ear and respect of everybody," and "Mr. Hoover, who was conspicuous for the stiffness of the man whose nerves are at the end of their tether."

In France, Clemenceau concluded, "the vital spark is gone."

"Our allies, dis-allied, have contributed largely to this result and we have never done anything to deter them. England in various guises has gone back to her old policy of strife on the continent, and America, prodigiously enriched by the war, is presenting us with a tradesman's account that does more honor to her greed than to her self-respect.

"Grown rich in the war, America is, if we can believe the experts, setting out to ruin us by intercepting, for the extravagances of her budding nouveaux riches, the sums that we are to receive as reparations for the damage caused by Germany.

"At the same time she is a thorn in the side of England, who can no longer aspire to the dominion of the seas under the pretext of 'freedom.' All the new central Europe is in a state of turmoil as a result of the recrudescene of violent activity on the part of a Germany who, with the unwitting help of the English and Americans, is preparing to start another criminal venture before she has expiated the last."

"Above all," he warns America, "do not be so ingenuous as to believe that you will disarm, by methods of persuasion, the powers who see you strengthening against every eventuality your means of defense, which might turn into means of aggression."

STOCKHOLDERS VOTE IN FAVOR OF BILLION STEEL MERGER

ment of character and business-like statesmanship.

Investors Are Welcomed.

"Bethlehem welcomes into its own ranks of stockholdrs, investors who have such a clear vision of their own interest as has been manifested by the real owners of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

"Of course, every latitude of time will be allowed on our part to obtain authoritative determination of every legal question involved.

"There is no doubt in our minds as to what the courts will decide and every possible legal technicality must be disposed of before the plan is consummated.

"We convinced ourselves before entering these negotiations that the plan was economic, that it would be beneficial to both Bethlehem and Sheet & Tube and in the interest of the steel industry and its workers. Everything that has happened since has confirmed our conviction.

Statement by Campbell.

"I would like to say also a word of gratification at the prospect of Bethlehem's becoming, through the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., a resident of the City of Youngstown. We look forward to cooperation with the community of Youngstown in developing and building up business which will be in their interests as well as our own."

Mr. Campbell issued a statement declaring that Sheet & Tube shareholders "may have perfect confidence that under the Bethlehem leadership the value of their investment will continue to enhance."

"The shareholders should understand that the terms of the contract are such as to allow ample time for the unraveling of legal complications," Mr. Campbell said. "No question of time will be allowed to defeat this proposal, which has been approved by the stockholders of both companies and is so economically sound and clearly advantageous."

Eaton States Views.

"The announcement of the result of the ballots on the Bethlehem-Youngstown merger clearly indicates that the merger will not go through," Mr. Eaton declared in his statement.

"Of the 857,000 votes ascribed to those favoring the merger, at least 90,000, I am advised, should be excluded under the decision made by Judge Turnbaugh in the cases submitted to him.

"This alone is sufficient to defeat the merger, but in addition there is a substantial additional amount of votes represented by proxies alleged to have been purchased and which under the laws of Ohio are illegal.

"These and other grounds of protest have been formally recorded in the minutes of the meeting and will be pressed in the courts.

Methods Are Called Ruthless.

"I wish to repeat that the methods adopted by those who are attempting to consummate this merger have been ruthless in the extreme, and the practices indulged in by important interests in obtaining votes are unworthy of the creditable reputation and standing enjoyed by them heretofore.

"I have every confidence that these matters will be brought to the attention of the courts and the public, and that the decision of the courts will confirm the fact that the merger has been clearly and definitely defeated.

"It now becomes the first duty of the management and all stockholders to vigorously conduct the business of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. to the end that the interests of the stockholders may not suffer pending final determination of this controversy. I will cooperate in every respect toward this end, and I will use my full efforts and influence in this direction."

Rented Instrument Mastered Until He Was Given Work With Small Dance Orchestra; Denies His Is "Jazz" Band.

By RUDY VALLEE.

CHAPTER XXI.—JAZZ AND HIS SAXOPHONE.

Paul Whiteman titled his book with this much-abused term.

Personally, I would not have dared to have done likewise, because I do not believe that I sufficiently understand what the term means to talk about it; and I have found, upon questioning those who use the word frequently and seemingly with understanding, that in reality they know nothing at all specific as to its meaning.

To some it is "peppy" music, to others a lot of noise, and to still others it is the waving of instruments in the air. I have found no two people who give the same definition of the word.

The real propagators of the word were a group of men in New York, who, back in 1918 and 1919, banded together and called themselves the Dixieland Jazz Band. The outstanding characteristic of their records as I recall "The Ostrich Walk," was that there was no distinguishable melody, every man seemed to be striking out for himself, playing a part of his own and only taking care that it did not conflict with the general harmony. These men were the first to use the term, and through their success the word came into widespread popularity.

Used Too Indiscriminately.

But today "jazz" is applied to almost any form of orchestra or band music which is not strictly classical, and this is a grave error, inasmuch as dance music may be just as sweet and beautiful as true classical music. Therefore I believe it is absolutely incorrect to use the word so indiscriminately.

The usual feature of my own orchestra is a clearly defined melody at all times, therefore, I do not see how we could rightly be characterized as a "jazz" band; and I would not term our music "jazz," even though I occasionally "laugh" on the saxophone and others in the band play what we term "blue" notes and unusual rhythms.

Whenever possible I correct any publicity that would style our little group of eight a "jazz" band or me a "jazz" band leader.

"Blue" notes are simply an exaggerated sliding up and down of the pitch of the note, and this is studied in legitimate music, just as arpeggios, rhythms, chromatic runs and accents are all studied and used in legitimate music and in the highest of classical music.

Jazz Came Out of the South.

Truly, I have no definite conception of what "jazz" is, but I believe that the term should be applied, in view of the fact that such music came up from the South, to the weird orchestral efforts of various colored bands up in Harlem, the Negro section of New York City. These bands have a style all their own, and at times it seems as though pandemonium had broken loose. Most of the time there is no distinguishable melody; in fact, even though they are playing a popular tune with a definite melody it is absolutely impossible for even a musical ear to tell the name of the piece.

It was the similar style of colored musicians in the South (New Orleans, to be exact), that first prompted this group of white men to adopt that type of music and style themselves the Dixieland Jazz Band.

But the public uses many words the meanings of which are very vague and doubtful, and a crusade on my part to attempt to show that the word is incorrectly used in the majority of cases, where the instrumentalist is simply employing legitimate and basic rudiments of music, would be absurd. A little reflection on the part of most any one who thinks at all will show that the word "jazz" nine times out of ten is misapplied.

Although Whiteman's music is really symphonized syncopation, occasionally he permits his brass team to play in this Negro style, and since he is unquestionably the king of all dance orchestra leaders, he is rightly termed "The Jazz King."

Probably most people connect my name with the saxophone, but only a few know that all my life I have had a great desire to play some sort of a musical instrument. I went from drums to clarinet, to trumpet, to saxophone.

The clarinet I studied faithfully for ten weeks and then was forced to neglect it, due to a very hard job in a sawmill during the summer vacation. When I think of how close I came to losing my fingers I thank my lucky stars that I finished that summer's work without receiving so much as a scratch from a saw. Many times when I worked on the "edger" the saw teeth striking a knot in the board would throw it back so that the palm of my hand just missed the teeth.

I took up the study of the trumpet while working back stage with a stock company, and then rented a saxophone when I began my senior year in school. The similarity between saxophone and clarinet made it possible for me to play a limited range of notes on the saxophone. The horn that I had was called a C Melody, being pitched in C. I could read song sheets, the violin parts, without any transposition. I used to play at night with several acquaintances who gathered in a bowling alley where near beer was served, and go canoeing with a banjo player or violinist. Always I played for my own amusement and for those who cared to listen. Finally I was engaged by a small dance orchestra, playing two nights a week in a Pythian temple building. This led to more engagements with various other bands and a summer engagement in northern Maine with what had been Maine's most famous dance orchestra, Welch's Novelty Orchestra.

By that time I had begun to think I was quite a saxophonist; the boys in the band, and in fact every band I played with, made so much of me that I was very pleased with my progress.

"Slap Tongue" Is Effective.

I had read somewhere, possibly in a Victor catalogue, about a Victor record that Joseph C. Smith and his orchestra had played called "Caravan." This was the composition of a young man, a saxophonist by the name of Rudy Wiedoeft, who, the article said, dropped in when Smith was recording the number and played a chorus of variations which were truly marvelous. Just before I left for the summer engagement in northern Maine I had listened to a record that this young man had made with another saxophonist and two pianos (these four called themselves the Wiedoeft-Wadsworth Quartet). On this record, called "The Crocodile," the saxophones had employed a peculiar form on tonguing known as "slap tongue" because it gives forth from the bell a sound very much akin to that produced by two boards being slapped together.

I noticed that this always intrigued the layman even as it did me. After experimenting a little bit with the mouthpiece and reed I stumbled onto this effect, and it stood me in great stead in those early days and brought a lot of attention to my playing, as many saxophonists are not able to do it.

Wrote Often, Vainly, to Wiedoeft.

Then in the fall when I returned from the summer engagement the Victor Co. released the first solo played by Rudy Wiedoeft on the same type of instrument that I used, the C Melody. Both numbers were his own compositions and one of them is his piece de resistance, the one that he is always associated with, namely "Saxophobia." They technical questions. The weeks dragged by but no reply came, so I wrote a second and a third and a fourth and so on until I had written eight letters. I made up my mind that if persistence counted for anything I would hear from him, but I did not realize that I was writing to perhaps the busiest man in New York City. Between phonograph records, solo appearances and a thousand and one pressing engagements Rudy Wiedoeft had no time for answering fan mail. Then again, Rudy dislikes letter writing, not being of a particularly literary turn of mind. I did not hear from him until I came down with acute appendicitis in December, 1920. This time, noting that I was sick and in the hospital, he answered my letters, replying to my questions in full.

I wrote Wiedoeft, asking him a few are masterpieces even today.

FISCAL RELATIONS BILL IS SUPPORTED

Merchants and Manufacturers Favor Commission to Study Problem.

SMOKE LAW IS BACKED

Indorsement was given by the board of governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association yesterday to the bill introduced by Representative R. Walton Moore, of Virginia, providing for appointment of a commission composed of members of Congress, District and Bureau of the Budget agents and Washington residents to study the fiscal relations of the District and Federal Governments and to make periodic reports recommending division of costs.

Approval was also given the measure of Senator Copeland, of New York, providing for the adoption of a more strict smoke nuisance law for Washington. The proposed law would put administration of the ordinance in the hands of the engineering department of the District instead of the Health Department, where it now reposes.

The board also voted approval of the bill of Senator Capper providing for a more rigid regulation of the erection and painting of advertising signs in the District.

Indorsement was given to the automobile parking survey of Washington, to determine the relation between traffic regulations and business, which is to be conducted by Dr. Miller McClintock, chief of the Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research of Harvard University. A fund for this survey is being raised by merchants. It was first suggested by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

19 BUS PASSENGERS KILLED IN CRASH

vivors, several of whom were seriously injured.

The engineer of the train, C. C. Davis, said when he realized the crash must occur, he clamped on the brakes and had slowed down to 38 miles an hour when his locomotive struck the stage. The train was partially derailed.

Bodies were strewn along the right of way. Only two large tires remained as mute evidence to the damage wrought by the collision and flames. Tourists and Indians from a nearby Pueblo were the first to arrive on the scene. But they could do nothing without ambulances which did not arrive from Albuquerque and other nearby communities until a half hour after the crash.

Crazed by the shock and injuries, one survivor wandered about the wreckage calling for his wife and child and, unable to find them, threw himself on the ground with the plea that he wanted to die, too.

"Apparently the bus driver attempted to turn parallel with the track when he saw he could not beat the train to the crossing," said Davis, the engineer. "The locomotive sideswiped the bus and carried parts of it a half mile."

Tonight six bodies lay in one Albuquerque morgue, and in another were twelve or thirteen—there was no certainty. At best, only parts of bodies could be assembled in some instances. The mail train, of which George Irwin was the conductor, was held at the point it stopped from 9:27 o'clock in the morning, the time of the accident, until late in the afternoon awaiting an investigation by a coroner's jury.

The jury, taken to the scene, was dismissed until positive identification of the bodies had been established.

ried off to a cell in the county jail, where he will be held without bail.

Earlier in the day, after Sanhuber had repudiated a confession, he advised authorities that he would waive trial if he could plead to a second-degree murder charge.

The indictment was returned after Sanhuber had spent several hours before the grand jury. He entered the grand jury chambers with the assertion that he woud "tell all."

Southern Society's Event Honors Thomas Jefferson

Descendants of Third President Present Tableaux on Statesman's Life and Hold Liberty Ball on Birthday Anniversary; J. C. Byars Speaks.

With lineal descendants of the great statesman participating, the Southern Society celebrated Thomas Jefferson's birthday anniversary last night with elaborate tableaux and a liberty ball in the Willard Hotel.

After J. Cloyd Byars, president of the society, had reviewed Jefferson's career and discussed plans of the association in connection with preserving Monticello, the program was turned over to the women of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, who sponsored a tableau descriptivt of the statesman's early life.

In the opening scene, which depicted Jefferson's courtship, Miss Margaret Sumner took the role of the Widow Skelton; Miss Dorothy Morris appeared as Jefferson, Frank Wolpert as the butler, Mrs. William Chamberlain as the Negro mammy, and Frederick Murphy and J. Rogers Flannery enacted the roles of visitors.

Miss Sumner, Miss Morris and Mrs. Thomas Betts, who appeared as Martha Randolph in the portrait scene, are direct descendants of Jefferson. Mrs. Willis D. Crittenberger appeared in the raiments of "Liberty."

In the garden scene, Mrs. Minnigerode Andrews posed as "Old Miss," and members of the Jefferson family were portrayed by Mrs. Thomas Payne and the little McAllister girls. The closing pageant, entitled "The March of the Nations," featured girls from Arlington Hall bearing the flags of a score or more countries.

Stewart G. Gibboney, president of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, and Claude Bowers, noted author and speaker, were scheduled for addresses, but both were unable to attend.

In discussing Jefferson's contributions to Government, Mr. Byars said that "not until his idealism was incorporated in the organic law of this Nation did the world behold a Government deriving its powers from the consent of the governed, in which religious liberty, free speech and a free press were guaranteed to its people for all time to come."

Mr. Byars spoke briefly of the sacrifices of the Continental armies, and expressed the hope that every State in the Union would erect a monument to their memory.

At the close of his address, and upon his motion, the society adopted resolutions expressing pride and appreciation for the accomplishments of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

Following the entertainment program, which included a selection of old southern songs, a dance was held until 1 o'clock.

RETIRED DENTIST ADMITS PART IN $200,000 DEATH CONSPIRACY

dianapolis case, after which he said he lived in constant fear of his life as a result of repeated threats of the gunmen because the Indianapolis plot was not carried out.

The sheriff quoted Dr. Bass as saying he conceived the plan to kill Dorsey as a result of a loan of $112,000 he said he and his wife made to him in 1928. As security for the loan, Bass said he was given a first mortgage on several hundred acres of land Dorsey owned in Miller County, Arkansas, near Texarkana.

Subsequently, Bass was quoted as saying, he learned the land was not worth as much as it was represented to be and he also discovered Dorsey had $100,000 insurance. He said he induced Dorsey to assign the policies to him as additional collateral.

Pearman Alleged Substitute.

In discussing this loan with a friend in Columbia, the statement said, a plan to kill Dorsey was conceived in order that Bass could collect the insurance. The friend put Bass in touch with a man in St. Louis who promised to furnish a gunman to kill Dorsey for $2,000, the statement said. To bind the contract, Bass was quoted as saying, he paid the contact man $1,000.

This Bass considered a compromise and payment in full, his statement said, but on the contrary demand for more money and threats continued until finally Bass conferred again with the gunmen "boss" and asked that he not be molested until he could sell his land in Arkansas.

The gunman became interested in the land deal, Bass was quoted as saying, and proposed that a purchaser for it be found, his life insured for a large sum and a body be substituted for that of the purchaser in some manner by which the insurance could be collected. A short time later Bass saw Pearman, whom he had known for many years, and casually mentioned to him an incident occurring last August, when Frank Folta, of Martinsburg, Mo., had told him he had a brother, William, who had been missing seventeen years, the statement said. Later Pearman, then an automobile mechanic, questioned him further on this.

"Folta" Is Killed.

Pearman then came to him, Bass was quoted as saying, and offered to purchase the Arkansas land. Negotiations began with Pearman using the name of William Folta, and he took out the $200,000 insurance under that name. Bass admitted, the statement said, that he paid the first annual intsallment on the insurance.

Subsequently Pearman, who for some time had been disguising himself and masquerading as Folta, was found shot to death in an isolated spot on a highway near here. Bass, the statement says, came to Gravette and identified the body as that of Folta because he was threatened with death unless he did so.

This identification was proven false and Bass was arrested.

S. K. Johnson, Kansas City real estate operator, who acted as agent between Bass and Pearman in the land deal, also has been indicted on a murder charge. The statement, however, in no way implicates Johnson.

shedding of coats and hats as promenaders sought cooling breezes.

Relief seemed far off until a refreshing wind swept in from the Northeast to fan the sweltering crowds.

Out at the Zoo the greatest sufferers were the animals indigenous to the Arctic regions who found no relief in the tepid waters. Even those of temperate climes found the sun a bit too warm for comfort and crawled beneath spreading trees.

Chicago, April 11 (A.P.).—Sudden atmospheric changes late today brought swift relief to sweltering Chicagoans.

The mercury, which yesterday shattered all records for April with a mark of 90, again climbed to that height today, hovered there from 2 o'clock to 3:05 o'clock, and then plunged, in 20 minutes, to 63, and in another 15 minutes to 53.

Warm southwestern breezes, which opened the day, shifted steadily to the west and finally gave way to cool northeasterly winds, swept in across the Great Lakes.

The rapid change drove heat sufferers back into their coats and put an end to a threatened preseason rush for the bathing beaches.

EDITORS' LAWYERS STUDY INDICTMENTS

Action of Montgomery Jury to Be Contested Next Week, Is Claim.

MARINE RESERVES UNITE

Counsel for the four editors of the Montgomery Independent, Rockville newspaper, who were indicted on charges of libel against county officials by the Montgomery County grand jury yesterday, passed most of the day in poring over the indictments and preparing their motions to quash the indictments.

It is expected that the motions will be ready for presentation to the court early in the week for two of the editors, Walter B. Casey, present managing editor, and Harrison B. French, former editor, who surrendered as soon as it was known that indictments had been returned. The other two, Walter W. Liggett, prominent magazine writer, who is in the West, and Morris A. Bealle, newspaperman, of Washington, who is too ill to appear, also will surrender as soon as possible, their counsel declared.

Counsel will begin action on the indictments of the two who have surrendered and will do nothing on the others until the principals are able to appear.

The four editors were indicted for allegedly having been responsible for articles charging county officials with maladministration of county affairs, which the grand jury considered untrue. The members of the anti-organization Democrats, who are the backers of the paper, say they welcome the chance to put forth their evidence in open court.

They plan to ask that several of the indictments be quashed on the ground that a nephew of the one of the accused county officials was a member of the grand jury and that several grand jurors owe their jobs to county commissioners. They expect to allow one indictment to stand so that trial in open court can result, they say.

Woman Approves U. S. Hague Stand

International Law Code Opposition by U. S. Is Satisfactory.

Miss Alice Paul yesterday expressed her satisfaction that the United States voted against the convention on nationality which was adopted Thursday at The Hague conference on the codification of international law.

Miss Paul is nationality chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, which has been waging a determined fight in Washington and at The Hague, under the leadership of Miss Doris Stevens, chairman of the commission, against launching a world code containing any sections discriminating against women.

"We rejoice that our Government has taken this emphatic stand against any world law based on inequality between men and women," she said. "We are proud that our Nation stood up alone in an international conference and refused to enter into an international code of law because it contained distinctions based on sex."

LETTERMAN SEEKS JURY TRIAL ON RAID

Sergeant Pleads Not Guilty When Arraigned Before Judge Given.

$500 BOND IS CONTINUED

Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, formerly head of the roving police vice squad, but now of the First Precinct, appeared before Judge Ralph E. Given in the United States branch of Police Court yesterday and, pleading not guilty to a charge of unlawful entry in connection with a raid last March 28 on the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Eleck Harmon, demanded a trial jury. Judge Given fixed the date of the trial for April 23 and continued the same $500 bond which the policeman made immediately after the warrant was issued.

The warrant on which the sergeant was arraigned was sworn to Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Harmon and is a result of a raid made by the policeman and his raiding squad when they went to the Harmons' apartment on S street near Sixteenth street in search for a man for whom they had an arrest warrant.

No Evidence Presented.

Due to the fact that Sergt. Letterman asked a jury trial no evidence was adduced. Mrs. Harmon, her husband, her witnesses and members of Sergt. Letterman's squad all were in attendance. The policeman was represented by Attorney E. Russel Kelly.

Mr. Kelly yesterday refused to divulge or intimate the nature of the defense which his client will make.

The raid on the Harmons' home created considerable furore. Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, in charge of prohibition enforcement in Police Court, refused to prosecute the case, alleging unlawful entry. After that Mr. and Mrs. Harmon intimated that they would seek redress both by civil and criminal action.

Other Steps May Follow.

As yet, however, no effort has been made to seek civil redress, and only Wednesday was it indicated that the other step would be taken.

On Wednesday complaint was made to the Police Department and formal charges being docketed before the Trial Board. The warrant was sought and obtained the following day.

Despite charges before the Trial Board and those contained in the warrant, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, has not suspended the policeman, but has merely transferred him from duty with the vice squad to his old position in the First Precinct.

Tokyo, April 11 (A.P.).—A dispatch to Rengo News Agency from Seoul today said several hundred houses were flooded at Kintei, Zenra Hokudo province, in southwestern Korea, when a reservoir burst. The reservoir was said to have been the largest in Korea. The dispatch did not mention any casualties.

Woman Wins Step In Forgery Fight

Federal Official Decides Removal to Capital Still Unjustified.

New York, April 11.—Declaring the complaint and bench warrant issued against Mrs. Winifred Negulesco were not sufficient to justify her removal to Washington to face charges of forgery preferred against her by her husband, Jean Negulesco, Roumanian artist, United States Commissioner Francis L. O'Neil today declared the Government would have to prove a case against her by producing prima facie evidence, and postponed the hearing for two weeks in order to give Assistant United States Attorney McLean time to produce the complaining witness and evidence to support his charge.

Mrs. Negulesco was arrested here March 19, following receipt of her husband's sworn complaint charging her with forging his name to papers giving her authority to remove furniture and other possessions valued at $50,000 from the Security Storage Co. warehouse.

She denied the charge of forgery and is fighting removal proceedings.

Rare Bird Crashes Home of Sisters

Policeman Is Called and Promises to Dispose of Pheasant.

Misses Lena and Josephine Willige, occupants of an apartment at 1419 Clifton street northwest, were greatly surprised yesterday morning when an unexpected visitor came crashing through their window, bringing glass and a puff of feathers with him.

They were so startled, they said, that they were afraid for several minutes to look around and see what had chosen to run in on them, but when they finally regained their composure they found that it was a rare species of a pheasant which had evidently lost its way in flying over the Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial and all the great Government buildings which it found scattered over the District.

The Misses Willige, after scrutinizing the bird closely, were unanimous in the opinion that it was not a frying chicken and called Park Policeman Grover C. Shumaker, who was passing on his way to his post in Meridian Hill Park. He stated that he would do his best to find out where this strange visitor came from, and if he did not succeed he would turn it over to the proper authorities.

Untermyer Got Million In Fox Case, Is Report

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—Alvin Untermyer, commenting on reports that his father, Samuel Untermyer, had received $1,000,000 as his fee for acting as counsel for William Fox in the litigation over control and financing of the Fox film and theater corporations, today said: "We never discuss our fees, so one guess is as good as another."

"The work is still unfinished and no bill has yet been rendered," he said. Samuel Untermyer is in Atlantic City for the week-end.

MARYLAND FIREMEN FIGHT FOREST BLAZE

Flames Near Meadows, Md., Cause Damage Estimated at $10,000.

RESIDENCES ARE SAVED

A forest fire, believed to have been started from a cigarette carelessly tossed by a "necking party" last night, was under control, although fire-fighting squads were still battling flames near Meadows, Md., at a late hour.

The fire was discovered about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and firemen were called from Greater Capitol Heights, Boulevard Heights, Upper Marlboro and other nearby towns. The firemen were unable to attack the flames with water, and before they could start backfires the blaze had spread over about 500 acres of woodland, much of which is the property of Dr. W. W. Stewart.

Included in the damage, which probably will reach about $10,000, was the loss of a spring cutting of fence posts on the doctor's property valued at approximately $2,500, according to Mrs. Stewart. In the path of the flames were several houses, but the firemen concentrated their efforts and managed to save them.

The fire spread through the area between Meadows and Camp Springs and Forestville. It is believed to have started on New Cut road near the Meadows road, which is a favorite rendezvous for "necking" parties, according to residents.

"Low" down payments

"Small" monthly payments are not necessarily the features that make a used car a good purchase.

Compare the total price—the finance charge—and every detail—the tires—the paint—and more particularly the mechanical condition—all are very important items of value.

The FORD DEALERS' policy in selling used cars is just what you would hope. When you buy a car which has passed from the hands of its first owner, you would like to be sure of two things. First—you want to know, of course, that the used car you buy has a generous amount of unused mileage in it. Second—you hope you are not being charged for an excessive trade-in allowance which the dealer may have made in order to sell a new car.

In short—you pay the FORD DEALER just what the used car is worth. This accounts for the low prices at which FORD DEALERS sell used cars.

THE NAVAL PACT.

Although the public was asked to believe up to this week that a five-power naval agreement was about to be consummated, it now appears that the five powers were not expected to agree. A three-power agreement has been reached, the details of which are not disclosed. President Hoover expresses great satisfaction with the outcome, and broadly outlines some of the features of the agreement.

The failure of the five great powers to agree is chargeable to the ineptitude of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in failing to prepare the foundations before calling the conference. Domestic exigencies seemed to drive him forward, without regard to the situation on the continent of Europe. The conference from the very first revealed that he had not studied the relations of France and Italy. Great Britain, France and Italy are now involved in a three-cornered controversy which might have been avoided. This controversy is a cloud upon the future, and until it is settled unexpected incidents may assume abnormal and dangerous proportions. It is incumbent upon France and Italy to make haste in finding an accord.

It can not be said that the cause of peace in Europe has been promoted by the London conference.

The three-power agreement embracing Great Britain, Japan and the United States will be scrutinized with extraordinary care by the public and the Senate. The people ardently wish a cessation of naval rivalry, and are well disposed toward the other nations in the agreement. Therefore the disposition in Washington will be to favor the treaty if it is found to be fair to all parties. An extremely complicated subject is dealt with, however, and it would be premature to pass judgment upon the treaty before studying it. Americans are not forgetful of the fact that the Washington treaty was hailed as insuring an absolute cessation of naval rivalry, and that Great Britain and Japan immediately thereafter began the construction of cruisers. The ill-fated Geneva conference grew out of the naval rivalry that followed the Washington treaty.

The Senate doubtless will give special attention to the implications that may be involved in the new treaty, and to this end committee hearings will be held. It is the habit of the Senate to attach reservations to treaties that may need them, rather than reject the pact entirely. Thus, if it should be found after searching inquiry that the three-power pact is not wholly satisfactory, reservations may save the situation.

One of the strong arguments in favor of a satisfactory treaty is that Congress would be disposed to go forward with necessary naval construction up to the treaty level, free from the pacifist and internationalist agitation that is incessantly demanding American intermeddling in foreign politics. The absence of political obligations in the three-power pact is a strong factor in favor of its ultimate ratification.

SUPPORT THE COMMISSIONERS.

The Washington Board of Trade, which led the movement against confirmation of Maj. Gen. Crosby as a civilian Commissioner of the District, received the new Commissioners at its annual meeting with an ovation, and formally pledged support to their administration. Opposition has disappeared since the Senate confirmed the nomination of Gen. Crosby. The Board of Trade has shown commendable public spirit by withdrawing its objections as soon as Gen. Crosby was inducted into office.

Opposition to Gen Crosby was never on a personal basis. Every one who objected to appointment of a retired Army officer as a civilian Commissioner nevertheless recognized the exceptional qualifications of Gen. Crosby for the Commissionership. In view of this fact there should be no disagreeable aftermath to the controversy. The technicality on which opposition was based has been swept aside, and it is time for organizations which made a point of that technicality to lay it aside also. The Board of Trade has taken the lead. It remains for other agencies to emulate this good example.

Success of an administration depends, in large measure, on the cooperation of the people. This is especially true in Washington, where civic and business organizations are relied upon for expression of public opinion. It would be unfortunate indeed if anything that was said or done in the recent controversy should be allowed to interfere with the cooperation which these civic bodies are accustomed to give the District administration.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES.

The inquiry by a Senate committee into campaign expenditures will provide excitement for a few months. The Deneen faction in Illinois, both the Grundy and the Davis parties in Pennsylvania and the Norris supporters in Nebraska have let it be known that they will appear before the investigating committee. The Deneen faction will charge unwarranted expenditures by Mrs. Ruth McCormick. The Grundy forces will claim undue interference on the part of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the president of which, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, is Republican State chairman. Secretary Davis will make countercharges against Mr. Grundy and his Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association and the Norris supporters to charge that power interests made available a large sum to fight Mr. Norris. While these three investigations are expected to hold the spotlight, the investigating committee probably will delve into conditions in other States.

It does not seem likely, however, that the investigation of campaign expenditures will result in legislation. The question that has never been answered is: What is a fair and reasonable expenditure for campaign purposes? Obviously, what would be a reasonable expenditure in Nebraska or Delaware would not go far in Illinois or New York, while expenditure in New York or Illinois, if made in Delaware or Nebraska, would be undeniably excessive. Money used actually to purchase votes can be easily traced, but there are more subtle ways of "buying" elections that are not so easily brought to light.

The investigating committee is given the usual broad authority to hold hearings, subpena witnesses and make a general, searching investigation of the various campaigns. An appropriation of $100,000 is made available to cover its expenses. From the time it begins functioning until after the new Congress is seated the committee will be much in the limelight.

ENCOURAGING VISITORS.

Representative Dyer proposes in a bill recently introduced to create a division of travel in the Department of Commerce. The division would be charged with promoting travel to and in the United States on the part of foreigners, particularly Canadians. He points to the success of France in promoting tourist travel and suggests that an organized promotional campaign should result in increasing considerably the annual expenditure made by foreign travelers in the United States. The division of travel would not confine its attention exclusively to encouraging visitors, but would also concern itself with eliminating complaints of persons detained at Ellis Island, where, he claims, acts of stupidity and charges of brutality have frequently been given world-wide publicity.

As a beginning tourists' exhibits would be placed at all important expositions and fairs held in Canada, while a "travel trade commissioner" would be stationed at Ottawa, with assistant commissioners at Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Such representatives could be of material assistance to tourists and business men who contemplate a journey to this country. They would doubtless be able to stimulate considerable interest in the United States. By establishing contacts with railroad, steamship and bus lines and hotel and automobile agencies the division would be in position to offer helpful advice to travelers to this country. It would not duplicate the independent work already being performed by American automobile and travel agencies; it would complement such work.

The proposed division of travel could likewise make it a point to protect foreign visitors from extortionate discounts upon their national currency, and likely could be instrumental in inducing governments to establish tax exemptions upon articles purchased here and returned with the visitor to his own country. The possibilities for building up an interest in this country on the part of travelers and potential travelers are great.

AMERICA FOR AMERICANS.

Immigration bills are being studied by both houses of Congress. The problem of limiting the influx of aliens is particularly acute just now because of the surplus of labor. Unemployment and immigration are closely related, and it is well to consider them at the same time.

The main issue before Congress is restriction of immigration from countries of the Western Hemisphere on a quota basis. Opposition has developed along two lines. Some members of Congress fear that such restrictions would lead to misunderstanding between the United States and Latin America, and the farming interests of the Southwest are protesting against curtailment of the Mexican labor supply. Since the quotas proposed for all other American countries have been made so liberal that their annual emigration to this country would not be substantially reduced, the whole issue hinges on the question of Mexican labor.

The Senate committee on agriculture has just concluded a hearing on a resolution that would authorize a commission to investigate the supply of unskilled agricultural labor. On one hand it is contended that agriculture in the Southwest would be handicapped by putting up the bars against Mexican laborers, and on the other, that these foreigners are depriving American citizens of opportunity for employment. Should a study of the situation be made Congress would have information on which to base its immediate action, but inasmuch as the labor surplus is variable no permanent solution by this method could be hoped for.

Senator Allen has announced that he will introduce a substitute bill, extending quotas to the Western Hemisphere and proposing a system of selective immigration. Aliens from both the Old and New Worlds would be admitted according to economic needs, rather than arbitrary quotas. Under this plan there would be no need for a commission to investigate the supply of labor, but the Secretary of Labor would be required to keep in touch with employment conditions throughout the country at all times, so that only those aliens who could be absorbed into the economic system would be admitted.

No one can seriously advocate admission of foreign workmen when American citizens are idle and in want. Competition of aliens, whose standards of living are lower than ours, will continue to be a drag on the labor market until some method of selection is adopted. While the unemployment problem is acute and while Congress is studying quotas for American nations, it is a good time to incorporate the selective idea in the immigration law.

HENRY FORD'S PROFITS.

When Henry Ford shut down his plants to install new machinery that would be required for the manufacture of Model A, other manufacturers were quick to realize that a rare sales opportunity would follow. While the Ford shops stood idle, manufacturers of competitive cars made a valiant effort to capture the small car field, and a question was on the lips of many as to whether or not Henry Ford would ever be able to regain his leadership. Part of the history of that episode is revealed by the Ford Motor Co.'s balance sheet for 1929, filed in Massachusetts.

In 1928, Henry Ford lost some $72,000,000 by the closing of his factories. Last year, however, there was a net profit of $81,000,000, to which must be added whatever dividends, if any, were withdrawn by Henry Ford, his wife and his son the three owners of the business. During the year 1,851,000 Model A's were turned out, constituting the largest output since 1925, when 1,990,000 Model T's were manufactured. It was announced recently that production had been stepped up to 8,500 units daily, and Edsel Ford has said that by May the factories will be operating at their utmost capacity, namely, 9,000 units every 24 hours.

The shutdown of the Ford plants was one of the most dramatic events in industrial history. The company's losses as reflected in the balance sheet do not reflect the total loss, inasmuch as the idle plants ate up overhead and, during the period, enormous profits were foregone. But the current balance sheet proves the wisdom of the shutdown and vindicates Henry Ford's remarkable foresight and keen business judgment.

GREAT FALLS

From the Boston Transcript.

Parks and power are staging another bout, this time in an arena of national repute, that beautiful sweep of river and landscape a few miles above the National Capital known as the Great Falls of the Potomac. The late James Bryce, who knew the capitals of the world as few other men, once wrote: "No European city has so noble a cataract in its vicinity as the Great Falls of the Potomac, a magnificent piece of scenery, which you will of course always preserve." This great Briton, one of the firmest friends of the United States, took it for granted that our Government never would permit a destruction of this incomparable asset for purely utilitarian purposes, nevertheless for many years the power rights have been privately owned, and now a Chicago company, working through a local subsidiary, the Potomac River Corporation, is striving for legislation which will make it mandatory upon the Federal Power Commission to grant a permit for private development. The Senate committee on the District of Columbia is now considering the Capper-Cramton bill, which would retain for the people, through Congress, control of this exquisite domain, and because of the location of the falls on the threshold of the City of Washington and the adaptability of the whole stretch of river and shore from the Key Bridge to the falls for park purposes, it is to the interest of every American citizen that the terrain shall be preserved for popular use.

It is one of the anomalies that this region, so strongly suggesting the Palisades of the Hudson, should not have attracted the wealthy to the banks of the Potomac for the development of superb country places. It has not done so, and perhaps in the final working out it is just as well. Few cities are as lacking in attractive suburbs and recreation places as Washington, but here is an area which needs only protection and inexpensive development to draw to it millions of visitors to Washington who have known nothing of it or have passed it by. In private hands, all esthetic considerations would be sacrificed to utility, but under the egis of the Government they would be taken into account, and even should it become advisable later, whether for purposes of power, navigation or flood control, to harness the river, this would be done with little sacrifice of natural beauty. Meantime, with the Capper-Cramton bill a law, the falls and the adjacent area could be parked, and enjoyed by millions, where only thousands are attracted to them now.

JEFFERSON.

(April 13, 1743—July 4, 1826).

When overseas intolerance more and more
Misprized the New World spirit, his the pen
To give potential mutterings of men
A vital meaning. From Columbia's shore
The luminous mandate, christened with their gore,
Dispelled the encroaching blight of kingcraft. Then,
In the strange, dazzling day of freedom when
Distrustful marplots threatened what was won,
He shaped a steady course intent to shun
The snares and pitfalls set for patriots massed
In yet untutored factions. So, at last,
The civic growth he cherished well begun,
Blest by the people's festal shouts, he passed,
The great republic's greatest citizen.

THE CALL OF BEAUTY.

From the Capital City of this highly practical country comes a story of a great traffic jam. The jam, reports say, was one of the worst ever experienced in Washington. It was not Lindbergh, not a million dollars on display, not Henry Ford, not an industrial exposition, not a famous captain of industry, says the Ohio State Journal, nor was it anything that might be associated with materiality that caused this enormous crowd of people to gather. It was cherry tree blossoms. Flowers! Impractical things when applied to material gain. Dainty, beautiful blooms that have not one cent of monetary value in themselves. And yet they brought people out as few things in Washington ever brought people out before.

Seventy-five thousand of them drove out to see the famed Japanese cherry trees in bloom. Seventy-five thousand people who live in the United States, the money-mad Nation of the world; the Nation that hasn't time for the beauties of life; the Nation that scorns anything not highly practical; the Nation wherein reside people who have no culture, who have no background, who would do anything for money, who worship the dollar sign. It is quite a revelation of the life of this country when cherry tree blossoms can draw the largest crowd Washington police have had to handle in years.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

ADVERTISING A HOUSE.

If I had a house to sell,
I should count the rooms and say
Very light and bright are they,
Pleasant rooms in which to dwell,
But my advertisement would Tell about the neighborhood.

If I had a house to sell,
I should advertise the street—
Of the people you would meet
I should take some space to tell.
This I'd shout in black and white:
"Kindly folk live on the right.

"Oh the left the Blanks reside—
Better people are not known,
They've three children of their own
And their garden is their pride.
People friendly, gracious, good,
Make this happy neighborhood.

"Here the lawns are kept with care.
Here the tulips bloom in spring
And at Christmas carols ring.
Here's a life that's good to share."
These are things that I should tell
If I had a house to sell.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

Yesterday your conscience was uneasy because you had told your mother a secret confided to you by some girl. It wasn't an important sacret; but it had been intrusted to you, and giving it away made you feel guilty.

That guilty feeling was uncalled for, and indicates need of training in the ethics of loyalty.

When some friend wishes to confide in you and you pledge your word to keep his secret, you are in honor bound to respect his confidence and give no hint of it to the world.

That much is understood by everybody. You can't tell when you have promised you won't.

But it takes two to make a bargain, and you are not a slave to be burdened with family secrets and threatened with violence if you reveal them.

When friends or acquaintances expose their private affairs to you and then add that you mustn't tell a soul, you should say to them: "When and how did you acquire authority to tell me what I must or must not do? I didn't ask for your confidence, and I feel no obligation to respect it."

Of course I don't mean that literally. I am merely trying to show you that people can't force an obligation on you.

The very fact that you listen places some obligation on you, however, and the safer plan is to dodge all confidences if you can.

There are just two kinds of secrets, and both kinds are trouble makers.

People who aren't very bright enjoy whispering unimportant things because an air of mystery makes them feel important.

If you listen to their foolish secrets and pledge yourself to silence, you are in constant danger of violating their confidence simply because it isn't important enough to impress you.

And when you pledge yourself to keep serious secrets, which nearly always concern wrong-doing, you make yourself a party to the wrong. Whether you keep silent or tell, your conscience will give you no rest.

With rare exceptions, secrets are so unimportant it is foolish to keep them secrets or so serious it is wrong to keep them hidden.

Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil, and thre is something wrong with people who have many secrets.

Don't let them take you in as a partner. You have nothing to gain and much to lose.

If they have nothing worth hiding, they whisper to impress you and thus make you seem a simpleton to please their own vanity; if they have something worth hiding, they want you to share it because a guilty conscience can ease itself by finding an accomplice.

Don't let curiosity make you a sucker. Love, DAD.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE FEEBLE FOX FILMS FIGHT.

The battle of William Fox to retain control of his moving picture che-ild is over and to movie fans, educated by Mr. Fox to expect big thrills, it was a flop. It was a fight in which nobody got bashed with a table, chair or umbrella-stand.

In violation of a cardinal rule of movie battles, not a man was hurled through a glass door at any period of the fight. Not a table was overturned or a window-casing smashed. There wasn't even a good old-fashioned chase through congested streets with Mr. Fox ultimately eluding the pack by climbing up a fire-escape and fleeing over the roof-tops!

Mr. Fox, no matter how it may have appeared to the business world, put up a feeble battle judging by all movie standards. Was he thrown off any cliff? No. Did anybody switch off the lights and jump on his neck in a dance hall? No. Did he at any time dash from a meeting, leap aboard a broncho and fly over hill and dale, taking potshots at the pursuing Halsey, Stuarts, Harley Clarke, Winfield Sheehans and Bancamerica—Blair's boys? He did not. Of course, there may have been some excuse for Mr. Fox's departure from all the rules of standardized movie fights. The bankers may have eaten his horse.

Roughly, the scenario should have called for a scene in which Mr. Fox, pursued by the bankers, jumped out of a second-story window, climbed into a plane and flew across country with Winfield Sheehan. Then there should have been a touching scene in which Mr. Sheehan took to the parachute and abandoned Mr. Fox.

Fox should have crashed, recovered consciousness just as Halsey and Stuart overtook him, and then fled by motorcar and speedboat, to be finally cornered in the Frenzied Finance Dance Hall. From there on:

1—Mr. Fox: "Come on, damn you!"

2—Mr. Sheehan: "You'd better surrender quietly, Willie, and avoid unnecessary bloodshed."

3—Mr. Fox: "Never!"

4—Mr. Fox backs to the stairway. The Bancamerica Co., Halsey-Stuart, Dillon Read and Lehman Brothers crowd him. Mr. Sheehan suddenly throws a chair at the chandelier, putting out all the lights.

5—Darkness. Screams.

6—Light is restored and Mr. Fox is shown standing on the railing of a balcony. Mr. Sheehan throws a vase at him. Halsey, Stuart & Co. throw a chair. Dillon Read hurls a bottle. Mr. Fox takes a headlong dive to a chandelier and swings across the room over their heads and out through a window.

7—Mr. Fox leaps astride another horse, whips out a pistol and wipes out his pursuers.

9—"Came the Dawn." Mr. Fox safely reunited with his che-ild. And without even his hair mussed!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Observer Thinks Ruth McCormick Will Be Presidential Timber if Successful in Senate Race.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If Ruth Hanna McCormick is elected to the Senate, which now seems probable, it will not be surprising if, later on, she should enter the lists for the Presidency of the United States. Possibly in 1932, and very likely at some subsequent time.

Unless new issues and new alignments in politics intervene, she would be the strongest candidate the Republican party could name and would doubtless be elected. The reasons for this belief are immediately evident.

In the first place her special fitness for political preferment has been shown by the thoughtful and well-ordered manner in which her late primary campaign was conducted.

Mrs. McCormick's intellectual qualifications being generally recognized, the large number of voters who are easily swayed by sentiment might alone tide her on to victory at the polls. This influence will be especially strong among the women of the country who, it is safe to say, are already more or less intrigued by her personality. Beyond a doubt the glamour of her candidacy will be a very important factor.

As for the electorate in general, it is a rather uncertain quantity at the present time, somewhat suspicious of statesmen who blow hot or cold to suit the occasion, and might take very kindly to a broad-minded candidate who puts principle above party, as when she says:

"I believe in supporting the Republican administration, but on a question of international relations, wherein I see grave danger to American ideals and interests, I believe that my first duty is to avoid sacrificing my own principles."

For first woman President of the United States, Ruth Hanna McCormick!

E. P. EVANS.

Nothing Like a Locomotive, Roaring and Blazing Through the Night!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A year or so ago the Southern Railroad decided to dress up certain of its engines. The dull, drab, workaday black that has become the traditional aspect of the iron horse was replaced with a cool, attractive green, and the exposed metal parts were nickeled and polished to reflect every beam of light. The effect was most pleasing. The engine seemed to have come into its own as an almost living creature—the glorified transportation symbol. Now the Southern adopts another innovation. Certain of its engines are to be equipped with musical whistles, upon which the engineer-musician will render such touching ballads of a day gone by as "Casey Jones" and "Alabama Bound."

Although the small boy of today may transfer a bit of his deep-rooted interest in transportation to the airplane, it is certain that the glamor of the locomotive will not be dispelled. Roaring through the night, its firebox open, bathing in its reflected fiery fury the sooty face of the coal tosser and silhouetting the regal figure of the engineer as he peers forward into the searchlight-stabbed dark, or dashing through the sunlit countryside with a plume waving proudly from its smokestack, the locomotive constitutes one of the most beautiful and inspiring achievements of this mechanistic age. Small boys will forever look upon the engineer, who controls his forceful brute beneath his finger tips, with awe and envy. Many of their elders share their emotions.

So let the locomotive make known its presence with a calliope! Let it chant its own song of triumph as it roars through the peaceful countryside!

ONCE A BOY.

Don't Be Afraid of Optimism, Fans! Think of Famous Victories of Old, Won by Unmitigated Gall.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your correspondent who says too much confidence will spoil any chances of our ball club to make good must be one of those soured fans who are never so well pleased as when they have a tail-end club to crowl about. That is, unless it may be in midseason when they see fit to razz the "Goose" or some other unfortunate star in a batting or fielding slump. My idea is that if a club is weak, overconfidence will not make it any weaker, and if it has class overconfidence will make it all the classier.

If I may mention a couple of examples, what made the famous Baltimore Orioles of John McGraw's scrappy days one of the greatest offensive and defensive nines that ever wore spikes, and what was it made the wise boys foolish in the case of Chicago's "hitles wonders," if it wasn't confidence over all? Yes, indeed; believe me, Kenesaw, in our national sport a surplus of confidence is a winning ingredient, grouchy prophets to the contrary notwithstanding. And don't forget that the noisy overconfidence of the home crowd is a great help to any ball club. I'll be there on opening day to help raise the roof, and I wouldn't wonder if "Old Fan" is also there to whoop it up in spite of his superstition that "hot spring hunches queer fat chances."

POP BLEACHER.

Illinois Voter Says Prohibition and Unemployment Are the Real Issues.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Chicago newspapers tonight carry the headlines "Illinois Vote Stirs Senate," "Illinois Vote Dooms Court."

The writer suggests that the rest of the country be not misled, if there is danger of thinking the voters in Illinois are sufficiently informed in the matter to have any opinion regarding the world court.

No doubt many, like ourselves, voted for Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, as seeming the less undesirable of the leading contestants, both of whom obscured the real issues, prohibition and unemployment, in the primary election for United States senator from Illinois.

THOUSANDS RALLY TO GANDHI'S CAUSE

10,000 Students in Calcutta Hold Demonstration as Police Wield Batons.

SALT VIOLATORS HELD

Bombay, India, April 11 (A.P.).—Violations of the Indian government's salt monopoly by the civil disobedience volunteers of Mahatma Gandhi were reported today from widely scattered points in India, and were attended with an increasing number of arrests, injuries and severe sentences.

Despite prudent efforts by the government, the "nonviolent resistance" movement appears to be making headway, particularly in Bengal, where the Mahatma himself has not as yet personally campaigned.

The college students of Calcutta have enthusiastically come out for the Nationalist cause.

Police Charge Crowds.

Ten thousand of the students demonstrated this evening in the college square, Calcutta. A large number of arrests were made, including some officers of the militia. At one time the crowd became so unruly that the police charged, swinging their batons. Several persons were injured.

Twenty-two persons were injured here when a riot broke out near the courthouse as a number of volunteers, sentenced to various terms of imprisonment after offering passive resistance to a police raid on the National Congress Party headquarters, were removed by the police.

Friends and sympathizers tried to adorn the prisoners with garlands. When the police fought them off they temporarily forgot passive resistance and fought back with a shower of sandals and stones. Ten policemen, including three Europeans, were injured, as well as 12 volunteers.

Situation in Hand.

All the way across the Indian Peninsula, in the neighborhood of Madras, important east coast city, various minor affairs occurred. At Kalikapur a strugggle between police and volunteers ended in the waters of a canal, into which the volunteers threw themselves in an unsuccessful attempt to evade arrest.

Mr. Gandhi, against whose liberty no attempt has been made, arrived in the Oipad district of Bombay Presidency to speed up in person the civil disobedience campaign.

Bombay had an exciting day, but the situation, which appeared at one time to be highly threatening, was well in hand tonight.

New York Senate Fails To Act on Wet Measure

Albany, N. Y., April 11 (A.P.).—The Cuviller bill, designed to memorialize Congress to call a constitutional convention to consider repeal of the eighteenth amendment, appeared to have failed of passage in the Senate tonight after adoption by the Assembly.

An objection to immediate consideration and vote sent the measure to the Senate rules committee, where it must remain for three days. The Legislature was scheduled to adjourn tonight or tomorrow morning, rendering chance of passage of the measure remote.

Ousted Sheriff Gets Term on Rum Charge

Madison, Wis., April 11 (A.P.).—Lyall T. Wright, 28, ousted sheriff of Juneau County, was sentenced to eight months in the Milwaukee House of Correction and fined $500 today on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

The former sheriff pleaded guilty to the charges several weeks ago and turned State's evidence in the trial of Clinton G. Price, district attorney of Juneau County, who was acquitted on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. The maximum penalty under the conspiracy statute is two years and $10,000 fine.

Advertising Firm Head Shoots Self to Death

Dallas, Tex., April 11 (A.P.).—James P. Simpson, 40, president of the Simpson Advertising Co., found in his home here yesterday with a self-inflicted bullet wound in the head, died today. He had been ill.

Simpson for the past ten years had been engaged in motion picture advertising and figured prominently in the national development of the industry. He was president of the National Screen Advertising Association.

COME on you, J. Ham! Come on there, boy! If ever a man carried a responsibility you do. All mankind will be watching you, J. Ham, depending on you to give them courage to go home.

The gift of silvery and honeyed words is attributed to you, J. Ham. Use it, boy. Get up close to them, and whisper in their ears. Croon for them, J Ham, moon for them and don't quit as long as you can see the white of their eyes.

Don't argue with them, J. Ham. If you get caught in a lie, feign illness and work on their sympathies. It's up to you, J. Ham, to break into this women's block, and there is only one chance in the world for you, only one vulnerable point for you to attack. Woo them, court them, J. Ham. Show them that man's moral suasion still rules.

* * * *

TAKE them apples, J. Ham. Take them candy and take them flowers. Show thoughtfulness, J. Ham.

Fall down in the gutter now and then, J. Ham, and plead that if a good woman would just get behind you there is no telling how far you would go. You will be surprised, or will you, J. Ham?—how many women will be found wanting to reform a man.

You might even court the Women's Christian Temperance Union, J. Ham. Tell them you are sorry you are wet. Let them think they may be able to reform you, J. Ham, and you will get their vote too.

* * * *

THERE is no need of fooling with the Antisaloon League, because they are womanish old men—that is, all save Dr. McBride, who has never looked natural in the league at all.

Every time you meet the dears, J. Ham, remark about the wonderful new dress they have on, and when they say, coquettishly, why, it isn't new at all, just say well, "My dear, you always look so beautiful that I thought it was new."

Come on there, J. Ham! Boy, it's up to you.

* * * *

TELL them you are a misunderstood man, J. Ham. This is as old as the hills, but it works every day.

This is the spring, J. Ham. Get to work now and don't let your enthusiasm lessen through the summer and the fall. Stroke those whiskers of yours and look dreamy, J. Ham. Appear to be one of those deep, silent men.

Talk about the desert, J. Ham, and the mirage that lies beyond.

Do these things, J. Ham. They have sustained man since the beginning of time. They have gotten him into and out of every hole he has ever been in.

PARKER FAVORABLY REPORTED FOR POST IN SUPREME COURT

will report to the full committee Monday.

The indications were that the labor fight against the judge was not making any material headway but the fight of the Negro association caused somewhat of a panic among senators whose States have a large Negro voting population. The two West Virginia senators, Goff and Hatfield, are understood to have been particularly nervous, as were the New Jersey senators. All of these senators as well as others were deluged with the protests of an organized campaign.

There are indications, however, that President Hoover treated the suggestions that Judge Parker's name be withdrawn as absurd. It was pointed out that regardless of how strong the fight might develop it would be better from the judge's standpoint to fall of confirmation than to have his name withdrawn.

With this reported stand of the President, the indications are that the panic has been somewhat quieted among the Republican senators. It is understood that Judge Parker has made an answer to the charges explaining that all he did in the campaign was to try to meet the usual Democratic charges that the Republicans planned to restore carpetbagger rule. He sought to denounce these charges and deplore the injection of the race issue, he is said to explain. Just what words he used are not known.

The Negro association is said to have been right clever in its fight. Realizing that the purported North Carolina incident would hardly be taken up by the Southern senators, it dug up another decision of the judge's in which he overturned a segregation ordinance in Richmond, Va. This was calculated to arouse the ire of the Southern senators. Just how the association squares the two propositions is hard to see.

It is not improbable that Judge Parker may be called before the judiciary committee and asked to publicly explain the North Carolina incident and if he can do it in the right way the restlessness in the Republican ranks will probably be entirely quieted.

JAPANESE EXCHANGE CLOSES ON DECLINES

Shut for Day as Wild-Selling Rush Follows Period of Acute Depression.

MILL WORKERS STRIKE

Tokyo, April 11 (A.P.).—Japan's long period of depression in trade and industry was reflected today in the one-day closing of the Tokyo Stock Exchange and the strike of 5,000 cotton mill hands in Osaka, Kyoto and Hyogo.

Shares listed on the exchange were said to have declined 30 per cent in value in two years, causing a paper loss of nearly $4,500,000. The strike of mill employes was precipitated by the announcement of the Kanegafuchi Spinning Co., that it had cut wages of its 50,000 employes 23 per cent.

Other spinning companies followed the lead of the giant Kanegafuchi company by reducing wages. Labor leaders are aligning political and other forces to resist wage decreases despite general depression.

Among causes assigned for the economic distress in Japan are the lessened American demand for raw silk, Japan's most important export; India's increased tariff on cotton fabrics, the second largest export from Japan; the slump in price of silver bullion, which has affected China's market for Japanese goods, and the declining specie reserves due to the removal January 11 of Japan's embargo on gold exports.

At the opening of the Stock Exchange today speculators for the decline hammered prices well below yesterday's closing. The directors suspended trading one hour to clear the confusion, but when a selling stampede was threatened they closed for the day at 1 p. m.

Manipulation by political opposition leaders was blamed by Hamaguchi cabinet members for the condition of the market.

Serious social troubles are predicted by some observers to grow from the economic depression and strikes. Attempts are being made by proletarian political parties to make capital of the situation and the Japanese Federation of Labor and other organizations are leading the fight against the Kanegafuchi Co., Japan's largest maker of cotton fabrics.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Army Groups Plan Several Social Events

Chief of Staff and Mrs. Summerall to Be Honor Guests.

DETERMINED to add luster to an early spring season dimmed by a period of official mourning and a desultory observance of Lent, Army folk about town are introducing a program of gaiety over the week-end which offers a stimulating impetus to the drab social calendar of the last 30 days or so.

Several parties are being given in honor of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, and Mrs. Summerall, and officers' uniforms will be quite in evidence at the dance tonight at Wardman Park Hotel where Gen. and Mrs. Summerall will be guests of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Andrew Jackson White, who are entertaining about 30 other guests. Last night at the Officers' Club at the Army War College Gen. and Mrs. Summerall were the guests in whose honor Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Harry S. Grier entertained at dinner preceding the dance given at the club. Col. and Mrs. Grier had about 60 guests. Also entertaining at dinner at the Officers' Club were Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Edwin Butcher who invited twenty guests for the evening; Maj. and Mrs. William Calvert having twenty for dinner, and Maj. and Mrs. Guy W. Chipman entertaining a large group of friends.

On Tuesday Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, commandant of the Army War College, will give a luncheon for the heads of various educational institutions in and near Washington, entertaining at 1 o'clock at the Officers Club of the Army War College, Gen. Summerall will be present.

Already drifting into town are several adjutants general from distant States journeying to Washington to attend the Association of State Adjutants General which will hold the opening session on Monday in the assembly room of the Militia Bureau in the Munitions Building. Thirty-five officers from various parts of the Union will come for the sessions, which were called by Brig Gen. Frank B. Beary, president of the association and adjutant general of Pennsylvania.

White House To Have Two More Fetes

Reception Planned for Representatives and Army and Navy.

Since the first period of official mourning for Mr. James W. Good, late Secretary of War, disarranged the official calendar, Washington has been surmising as to how the many state receptions would actually take place. Then when a second period of mourning and Lent disposed of official entertaining for a time, the receptions were again postponed. As yet no actual dates have been chosen, but it is understood that there will be only two more state receptions at the White House this season: One for the members of the House of Representatives and one for the Army and Navy. The two dates mentioned are May 1 and May 8, but which date will be for which reception has not been announced, though it is supposed that the first will be for members of Congress. The Army and Navy reception will include only the higher ranking officers down to lieutenant colonels and lieutenant commanders, and it is also rumored that there will a garden party given later in May for the lower grade officers. The three other receptions planned in the original calendar, those for the Treasury and Postoffice Department, Agriculture and Interior and Commerce and Labor, have been canceled, and it is doubtful if there will be a diplomatic reception this season, since the Diplomatic Corps was received on New Year's Day, and after the dinner given by the President and Mrs. Hoover for the chiefs of missions, the entire corps was invited to the musicale which followed. Hitherto only those next in rank to the chef de mission have been included in this group.

Mrs. Hoover received the Directors of the Division of Child Hygiene, of the American Child Health Association, yesterday afternoon.

At the annual dinner of the English Speaking Union on April 23, Bishop Freeman, one of the vice presidents of the society, will preside.

MAN KILLED IN FIGHT AFTER BANK HOLDUP

Robbers Are Pursued 40 Miles by Posses in Running Gun Battle.

$6,000 IN CASH TAKEN

Piqua, Ohio, April 11 (A.P.).—Posses tonight pushed their search for members of a bandit gang that held up the City National Bank & Trust Co. this morning, robbed it of approximately $6,000 in currency and escaped after they had slain one man and wounded three others.

Meanwhile, the bank announced the offer of a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the thieves, and Miami County commissioners supplemented this with $5,000 more. The robbers, who riddled the downtown section with hundreds of rounds fired from machine guns and rifles, were pursued by a hastily organized posse, headed by Chief of Police Frank Gekle, of Piqua, and Sheriff Frank Matthews. They drove north from Piqua, on the Dixie highway, running the gantlet of gunfire from citizens along their route. The posses followed them as far as Sidney, but lost the trail at Fort Loramie when an overheated motor set fire to the sheriff's automobile and destroyed it.

Reports varied as to the number of robbers. Seven men were reported to have driven up to the bank shortly after 10 o'clock, four of whom went inside, scooping up cash from the cages after disarming guards posted in the lobby and forcing employes to lie on the floor.

Henry Matthews, 40, brother of the sheriff, was wounded fatally by a bullet through his heart. The robbers' weapons swept the street, riddling windows and electric signs. Nathan Lawrence, a carpenter, was shot in the leg, and Raymond Alexander was struck by a missile. William Banning was hit by a bullet that glanced from a building.

Frank P. Ervin, vice president, accosted by one of the group, fell to the floor and onto the burglar alarm.

As the bandit car started from the bank, Chief Gekle and his deputies came out to the street and started pursuit. During the 40-mile chase to Fort Loramie the bandits fired several charges from shotguns and rifles at the pursuers.

Bank officials said they had posted guards in the institution after several suspicious persons were seen in the bank during the past several days.

Police said the bandits carried machine guns, automatic rifles, shotguns and pistols.

Wash Day

It was during the period that the Lost Battalion was being sought by troops made up of the Twenty-ninth and Twenty-seventh Divisions.

I had taken a detail to carry on liaison and reconnoitering work for the troops, making an effort to cross the Meuse River. The personnel assigned to me was fourteen in number, dispatch bearers, runners, scouts, one of whom was a little Russian Jewish boy from Newark, N. J., Karl Yonowski, who in civil life was a ladies' tailor. Needless to say, the extent of his usefulness was to provide amusement for the rest of the detail, even in times of gravest danger. We dug in at the base of a hill, at an advance point, in order that I might figure out the situation and instruct the men as to what they were supposed to do. About midway to the top of this hill some Field Signal men had constructed a temporary aerial which was connected with their instruments in a hole dug at the base of the hill about 50 yards from where we were lying. On this particular morning there had been some disconnection in liaison service, and I received orders to establish communication between the oncoming troops and the troops to my left. I immediately sought information from the Signal Corps men which might assist me. Upon arriving at this "signal office" I found the men cussing and swearing and tearing things apart generally because of the fact that the contact which they had had a few minutes before had been broken. Not knowing the source of the interruption, they were bemoaning the fact that it would be necessary to retrace the wires already laid and suffer the danger of being bumped off by machine gun fire or a shell. Seeing their difficulties and not having much time to spare, I returned to my men, and upon calling them together missed Yonowski. I instructed a couple of my men to go out and find him, and get him back to me immediately. The men were just leaving to accomplish this when I heard the voice of one of the Signal Corps men telling somebody that he was a ——— ———, and if he did not "get the h—l out of there" there would be a murder. Going to see what the trouble was, I discovered Yonowski (who had gotten water-soaked the night before in our shell hole) had partially disrobed and had taken advantage of the Signal Corps aerial to dry out his clothes, notwithstanding the fact that the clothes were hung right in line of the enemy fire and served as a perfect target for shell fire to where we were located—and one shell would probably have cleaned out the gang. Yonowski was ordered, under threat of being beaten to death, to get his clothes off the aerial, whereupon the aerial communication was reestablished.

"Gunboat" Hazards

Our long journey to France took 21 days and toward the end of the trip we had more time than anything else. In order to break the monotony there was dancing on the aft deck every afternoon from 4 to 5.

As I came through the hatch one afternoon a "gob" loped over to me and said, "Say, kid, I'll give you the next fling." The invitation rather startled me and I guess I showed it because his next remark was, "You'll do it for a ton of bricks." We "pump-handled" around the rolling deck a bit, after which I realized what he meant by a "ton of bricks" when he had landed on my feet a few times.

All "Cuckoos"

Various units of the Thirty-second Division living in an old stone quarry which was very close to the front lines near Jouy, France. A large first aid station was established in the quarry and besides hundreds of wounded, numerous shell shocked soldiers were passing through the station daily.

The divisional gas officer, Capt. J—, was very much on the job and it pained him greatly to see any one without their gas mask on and in the "alert" position. He was forever calling some one down, in no uncertain terms.

Early one morning when the first of the day's wounded began to come in, a hospital sergeant was walking behind a litter, with a corpse on it, which was being carried by two of the sergeant's men. The sergeant had no gas mask on and, of course, he was spotted by Capt. J—, who rushed up from behind, grasped him by the coat collar, shook him and shouted, "Say, what in hell do you think you are, a bear—," but by that time the sergeant had the captain around the neck, called for help from his litter bearers and with their assistance carried the wildly protesting D. G. O. to the aid station. The more the captain protested and the more his blood pressure went up, the more convinced were the medicos he was a bad case of shell shock, and they were preparing a straight-jack . when some passerby vouched for the sanity of the "patient."

Cool and Collected

During July, 1918, about three days from England, our fleet of transports was subjected to a submarine attack, but the subs were driven away by our chasers. The personnel of the 110th Regiment, Field Artillery, Twenty-ninth Division, were all at their stations prepared to abandon ship if necessary. The ship was the S. S. Keemun, a steel-constructed British merchantman doing transport duty, and commanded by Capt. Collister, a typical English seaman, of long acquaintance with war. The captain commented on the fact that the American soldiers showed no fear, but were apparently as interested as they would be at a circus.

No damage was done the fleet, but excellent practice was had by the sub chasers guarding the transports.

The next day the major commanding my battalion called a meeting of his officers in his own stateroom below decks. There were five of us including the major and his adjutant. We were very deep in the solemnities of the proper way to conduct a war when we were startled by two distinct crashes, apparently a torpedo hitting the ship and then exploding. The whole ship seemed to vibrate noisily, followed by a moment of contrasting silence. We looked at each other in horror; our faces were all drained of color, and no doubt mine was as ghastly looking as the others.

Without a word we rushed out of the stateroom with visions of a panic at the only too few boat and raft stations, as the 1,300-odd troops were crowded in a very small transport.

Running up the steps as fast as we could, all dignity of our shoulder straps forgotten, we arrived breathlessly on deck only to find a very beautiful thunderstorm brewing, the fleet still calmly plowing through the sea, the sub chasers lazily cruising around the fleet and no submarines in sight.

Our dash onto the deck attracted the attention of a few hundred enlisted men, who looked at us for a moment, then burst out laughing, no doubt our scared faces telling them the story of our sudden appearance in their midst.

First the major smiled in a sickly way; we all smiled the same way, but at the same time trying to think of something to say in an off-hand way to cover our confusion. Then some one said (I think one of the enlisted men), "What, the officers frightened?"

BAG-TO-MATCH IDEA

And not only have design, material and style been matched... but quality, too!

And that is unusual. For many manufacturers are content to create the appearance of quality alone. Not so with I. Miller! Anything that bears the I. Miller name must be as good and as fine as artistry, skillful workmanship and perfect materials can make it. See these bag-and-shoe ensembles. Examine them side by side. Be critical. Notice the perfection of stitchery. Study the perfect matching of color. Look at the leathers carefully. And critical as you may be, you'll find not a particle of difference between the bag and the shoe! We are rather proud of that. We believe that it supports the ideals of quality that I. Miller established thirty years ago.

BOY GETS SIX YEARS AS TEACHER BEATER

Ordered Paroled in Custody of Parents, if They Can Manage Him.

STUDENTS FLEE BATTLE

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 11.—An attack yesterday on his principal in the elementary school at Pasadena, 10 miles north of Annapolis, in which other pupils fled to safety during a spirited exchange of blows, le d night drew 18-year-old William Hook a stiff conditional six-year sentence in the Maryland School for Boys at Baltimore.

The penalty was meted out by Police Justice C. W. Mulligan, in a hearing at Pasadena in which incriminating testimony was given by witnesses against the youth, who was arrested during the afternoon on a warrant charging assault and battery.

The magistrate ordered that young Hook be committed to the Baltimore institution until he is 21 years old. He conditioned this sentence, however, in declaring that he would place the boy on parole for a year in ' e custody of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hook, if they could manage him, or else place him in an institution of their own choice. They were given ten days to make a decision.

Testimony showed that Hook assaulted Frank Gunderoy, 28-year-old principal, after a woman teacher had reported the youth for an infraction of rules in class. Hook became incorrigible and rained blows at the principal, finally felling him with a glass ink well hurled at close range while other pupils were scurrying outside.

Gunderoy was treated at Emergency Hospital here for a slight fracture of the nose, two discolored eyes and skin abrasions. He had returned to school only a few days earlier after a severe attack of influenza three weeks ago.

Testimony was offered also to show that young Hook attacked the principal at the school not long ago, and that he had played the role of a bully for a lengthy period there. It was brought out that he had been arrested on a previous occasion in Anne Arundle County.

Child Struck by Truck As He Goes After Ball

Running into the street in front of his home at 739 Second street northwest to retrieve a rubber ball with which he was playing, 5-year-old Mayfield Jones, colored, received internal injuries and severe lacerations on the head when he was struck by a truck driven by Charles Baroch, 19 years old, of Cherrydale, Va. Baroch took the child to Sibley Hospital, where he was later transferred to Freedmen's Hospital. The driver was booked at the Sixth Precinct station on charges of reckless driving and failure to show a driver's permit. He was released on $600 bond.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

IF I were delegated to nominate the busiest man connected with the cinema in Washington at the moment, I should say that Andy Sharrick, managing director of the Rialto Theater, is entitled to the biscuit.

Since his return to the Capital early this week, Mr. Sharrick has been in constant telephonic communication with New York in an effort to forestall what might or might not have been a major film event. Had the time been a little longer, the project would have been great; under existing conditions, I am not so sure.

The idea was to reopen the Rialto on Saturday, April 19, with a world premiere presentation of Universal's production of "The King of Jazz," with Paul Whiteman and a segment of his band here in person and the admission tariff to scale up to $2.50 in opulent, big league style. Obviously, it does not take one familiar with the strange vagaries of publicity and exploitation promotion to know that there does not remain sufficient time to steam up so pretentious an undertaking to the maximum of its possibilities between now and a week from today.

Mr. Sharrick's counsel happily has prevailed and the opening bill today week will be featured by first presentations in the Capital of "The Captain of the Guard," already largely ballyhooed under the title of "La Marseillaise," with John Boles and Laura La Plante costarred and our old friend Stuart Holmes doing one of the best bits of his career as the king.

While the regular scale of prices will prevail, the rededication of the Rialto to the new line of Universal special productions will not be without its distinctive elements of appeal. For example, it was decided late yesterday afternoon that Mr. Boles will be present in person at the Saturday opening, all day Sunday and probably longer.

Another decision in which local picture lovers will be interested is that hereafter the new Rialto bills will be inaugurated on Saturday of each week instead of Friday. The Rialto was the Washington pioneer in adopting the Friday opening, but now reverts to Saturday.

As an easy reminder of what is currently available, the week's attractions in the movie houses are as follows: Palace, Winifred Westover and Ben Lyon, in "Lummox;" Fox, Sue Carol, Dixie Lee, Walter Catlett, Frank Albertson and "Whispering" Jack Smith, in "The Big Party;" Earle, Dorothy Mackaill and Sidney Blackmer, in "Strictly Modern;" Columbia, Hal Skelly and Doris Hill, in "Men Are Like That;" Metropolitan, H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson, in "The Furies;" RKO-Keith's, Barbara Stanwyck, Ralph Graves, Marie Prevost and Lowell Sherman, in "Ladies of Leisure," second week.

My Tuesday comment upon the engaging topic of the American theater-going public's bull-headedness seems to have struck a responsive chord in many breasts. My Saturday night observations at the Palace evidently have been duplicated by a large number of interested bystanders at one time or another.

In fact, Mr. Ralph D. Washburn, 2019 I street northwest, was recently so diverted by his neighbors in the front of the orchestra floor in a popular cinemagogue that he was compelled to leave the theater without ever having had an opportunity to discover what the feature picture was all about. He found the show out front much funnier!

Another correspondent, evidently of the opposite gender, seeks the shelter of anonymity to inform me that if her letter is not printed in full, she will know that this column is run purely as an advertisement! It may, in this instance, be considered run in part to advertise the invariable rule that persons lacking the courage to sign their letters will be accorded no consideration whatever by this department.

This desk is indebted to Inspiration Pictures, Inc., for one of the handsomest brochures it has ever seen upon the fascinating subject of "Hell Harbor," a Henry King production, starring Lupe Velez, for release through United Artists. In effective futuristic design, compelling exposition of the picture's salient points and all-around efficiency as a selling medium, it is no less than a masterpiece of modern advertising.

I hope the picture itself will be half as good.

This may be spring, but don't take my word for it—I thought the same thing a ton-and-a-half of coal ago!

LOITERING Along FASHION LANE

BY THE SAUNTERER

I HAD the good fortune the other evening of being present at the monthly meeting of The Hecht Co. Men's Stylists. And over the cigars and cigarettes we discussed the current tendencies in men's apparel.

Among the items noted was the great popularity of the ensembles. Grouped about the tables were about eight or ten of these ensembles for spring and summer wear. Beginning with the suit and taking in every piece of clothing a man wears the colors harmonized or agreeably contrasted. Below I list four of the groups.

I might mention now that one of the shades you're going to see a lot this summer is canary . . . a bright pleasant shade of yellow. This shade was shown in golf ensembles, sports shirts, beach robes and pajamas. More of that later.

First I noted a Society Brand Staunchly worsted blue suit with a wide-spaced pin stripe. 2-button coat and matched lapels, $50. With this a Manhattan Shirt in blue, white-striped, $2.50. A Berkley Blue tie with an all-over self-figured design, $2. Interwoven blue socks with embroidered clock, $1. Society Brand grey Acquadown topcoat, 50. The Grey Homburg by Sheldon, $5. Hanan Black Dress Shoes, $12.50. Accessories, including braces and jewelry, all match.

Another good-looking outfit was in maple brown. Suit by Society Brand, $50 . . . with a Sheldon camel hair topcoat at $35. The Dobbs snap brim hat, matching, was $10. Manhattan corded madras shirt in tan, too, $3. The Tie, by Berkley, has a cross-line pattern, $2. Packard's Arch Aid Shoes, $10. As in the other ensemble the socks, jewelry, braces and handkerchief all harmonize.

Silver-grey, inspired by silver fishing sails, was next. Shown in a swagger double-breasted by Society Brand, a Sturdyman worsted at $65. Manhattan's corded madras, creole colored shirt with a faint blue stripe formed a pleasing contrast, $3. The Berkley blue tie had a red dotted design, $2. Phoenix hose in blue, with embroidered clock, $1. The Hat the Stylists chose was Naples Blue, by Sheldon, $5. Society Brand Acquadown Topcoat, $50. Packard black shoes, $10.

Last, but not at all the least, I selected a tweed ensemble for my report. A 2-button grey tweed . . . from Society Brand, $50. With a Society Brand Beverly Tweed topcoat at $50. Worn with a Manhattan Blue shirt, enlivened by tiny red embroidered figures, $3. The Tie . . . a Berkley Tie . . . in a dark red shade, $2. A Dobbs Vanity Fair Hat with snap brim in grey, at $10. And, for a finishing touch, smart wing-tip oxfords in the well-liked line of Footmodel Shoes, $6.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ALTHOUGH the matter will not have to be decided definitely until the Washington Nationals go out of town, there is an element of uncertainty in connection with the broadcasting of local baseball games this season.

At the present time it looks as if neither WRC or WMAL will do them. The opening game will be broadcast on Monday at 3 o'clock by both stations.

Having mastered the pronunciation of the name of the Japanese Ambassador last Sunday, which, as the radio audience heard it, was "Kazoogi Dabootchee," the overworked announcer for the diplomats' hour is practicing up on the monicker of the Polish Minister, Tytus Filipowicz, who speaks tomorrow afternoon.

The Soloist Ensemble, Institute of Musical Art, will broadcast a special Lenten program at 7:30 o'clock tonight under the direction of Otto Torney Simon from WMAL.

A RUMPUS is being raised as to who writes the "Amos 'n' Andy" radio dialogue. The latest assertion is that it is John P. Medbury, a humorist employed by a syndicate. This the syndicate denies, as does the National Broadcasting Co., which says the boys write their own material.

The NBC explains that the way Medbury's name happened to be mentioned is that his syndicate approached "Amos 'n' Andy" to do a newspaper comic strip.

Other assertions are that Andy writes the continuity, that it is written by some one in California who mails it every day, and that some unknown girl in Chicago writes it.

Having previously heard some of these conflicting statements, we asked "Amos 'n' Andy" for the facts when they were in Washington.

"Take it from us," Amos replied, as Andy nodded in approval, "we write our own stuff. Usually we write it two or three days ahead of time, but if we get behind, we work on Sunday to catch up. We never allow anything to interfere with that."

This is confirmed by William S. Hedges, president of WMAQ, from where they broadcast.

"No one is doing any ghost writing for 'Amos 'n' Andy,'" Hedges declares. "They have always written their own episodes."

Likewise reports are flying around about the juicy salary offers the boys continue to receive, such as Flo Ziegfeld holding out $8,000 a week to them for his new "Follies," and $15,000 a week from two companies, respectively, which desire "Amos 'n' Andy" to appear in their moving picture theaters.

A MYTH in connection with the boys is that Bill Hay, the announcer, receives a third of their salary. However, Hay has nothing to do with the broadcast other than the announcing for which he is paid by the station.

Distance is no obstacle in the new device whereby persons telephoning may see each other. The engineers declare that it is just as easy to let a person in a television booth in San Francisco see a person at the other end of the line in New York, as it is to send the image over a short distance.

The system is applicable to radio but with less certainty than when wires link the two points. Dr. Frank B. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., heralded the new step as interesting but as yet "commercially unavailable."

ANOTHER of those stories of dignified high-salaried corporation executives going into solemn session over some trifling item on their radio program occurred last week when a big paint company was faced with the problem of finding a woman singer for its signature song.

"A whole group of company executives and another group from their advertising agency, gathered to have an audition," Variety says. "After spending the afternoon selecting a singer from among 35 sopranos the captains of industry were congratulating themselves on a big day's work and the solution of an important problem, when the musical director of their hour came in.

"After listening to the soprano for a moment, he said: 'She won't do. She doesn't sing in the original key.'"

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

About you and your kitchen—we have some ideas for perking up! (Dah-ray Ideas).

Paris, April 11.

WE'VE had more fun with today's illustration, which purports to make you think kitchen-y, without showing you a kitchen! We've come to the conclusion that modernistic art is as slow to be appreciated and understood as it is, for the so simple reason that it does not attempt to photograph things as they are, but rather by suggestion to make the person who looks at it feel, think of, get a mental picture of, the subject. And people don't fully get the idea yet.

Deny if you can that today's design makes you think of the kitchen and things to do with the kitchen!

Because we've been working on a leaflet telling you how to doll up your kitchen in umpteen languages—I mean, we consulted all our friends of mixed nationalities about the matter, and got some ideas!

• • • •

Whether you have a kitchen or no, you had better not let another grass-blade grow under your foot before you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this extraordinary amusing and interesting leaflet! Oh, of course, you may not sport a kitchen these days, but then you never know when you might, do you? Even if it's the tiniest little kitchennette, hidden away in a spare corner of your apartment, it could benefit by some of our ideas for its decoration.

• • • •

I saw the loveliest dress! If you can do things with paint brushes, or can kid somebody into doing them for you, you might make one like it. For it was lace with a long full skirt and a cape back, and the entire design of the lace was brought out with fine lines of gray and black paint following the design of the lace, which was creamy white. You just bet everybody oh'ed and ah'ed about it!

• • • •

Yes, if you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right this minute for the leaflet telling you how to make lovely screens, you may have one of the few leaflets left.

Mag-Helly shows an awfully amusing sports dress, which I am sure will appeal to a lot of people's sense of humor if not sense of superstition. For this is one time when the white elephant won't be shunned, because he's printed several times all over a reddish brown background, and at the natural waistline he—another one of course, fastens the buckle.

No, the elephant embroidered on the chic scarf worn with this dress wasn't a single one too many—not a bit of it—'specially when you remember that elephants are good luck!

Where else could you wear a bracelet, when printed chiffon summer dresses require long gloves, than just above the elbow? And short-sleeved summer dresses do require long gloves—don't think for a single instant that they don't!

Ding! Ding! The Goofus Dingo starts,
All together—not in parts,
Although he is in sections built,
His hind legs clothed in Scottish kilt,
He's ne'er a Scot—I'm sure I'm right,
For he's not put together tight.

WORK ON BRIDGE

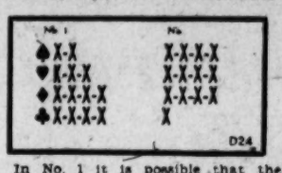
CONTRACT BRIDGE.

What is the duty of the partner of a player who, at a love score, has started by bidding three of a major, when that partner has a hand with one trick only probable? For example, with three Spades bid by South and passed by West, what should North do with either of these hands?



In No. 1 it is possible that the King of Hearts will not be of service to South; in No. 2 it is possible that South has only a single Club, and consequently that the ability to ruff the second round will be useless. With hands of this type a jump to 4 is concededly dangerous; but nevertheless there is a good chance that either hand will furnish just what the three-bidder happens to need to enable him to go game. Even if in any sitting or series of sittings, bids of this kind should fail more often than they succeed, the fact that none of them can fail very seriously (the three-bidder must have at least eight tricks, possibly more) makes the possibility of game worth the risk.

When the opening bid is four of a major, it is obvious that there is no need to jump for game; but with four of a minor bid originally, any probable trick would justify a jump to five. Even the Ace of the suit the partner has bid would not justify a jump to five of a major unless the hand contained some other positive strength. The four-bid may well have been made with only nine sure tricks; in which case a trick in partner's hand would insure the game contract, while a jump to five might result in a set.

So the partner of a major four-bidder should pass with one trick, but should show two tricks by bidding five. With two assisting tricks the contract of five is assured; and if the original bid was made with ten sure tricks, a slam is in the combined hands. If the original bid was made with less than ten sure tricks, the five-jump will be passed and made. With three tricks, facing a bid of four of a major, the partner should make a slam bid of six.

"ARIES."

IF APRIL 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Fate is not in a helpful mood on this date, and your success or failure depends, not so much on the resources at your command, as on the command of your resources. Worry may be caused through others.

The child born on this April 12 will be well balanced, both mentally and temperamentally. It will be cool headed in time of emergency, and it will take considerable to upset its equanimity. It will not be brilliant, but it will have a good mind, backed by common sense.

Temperamentally, you are a pacifist. You are not a conscientious objector to fighting, but any kind of a quarrel or squabble goes against the grain with you. You would almost rather turn the other cheek than to defend yourself by force. You will eat considerable humble pie in order to keep peace. You often, however, use up more energy going around your obstacles than you would use fighting your way straight through. You will fight for a principle whereas you will not fight for other causes. One word against your honor puts you on the defensive. You are quick to defend a friend, and you will not listen to one being mistreated by an idle or malicious tongue.

You have a very trusting nature, and you hate to think evil about any one. You are, of course, disillusioned many times, but it is better to be blind, than to have a jaundiced vision.

If you accept a mediocre position in life, it will be because you have lacked ambition, and have not asserted yourself. Your brain power, and your abilities are not mediocre, but many of your powers will remain latent. You adapt yourself readily to your surroundings, and your are seldom bored with either people or surroundings.

Successful people born April 12:

1. Henry Clay, statesman.
2. Donald Grant Mitchell ("Ik Marvel"), author.
3. Charles Foster, Secretary of the Treasury under Harrison.
4. John S. Billings, physician and author.
5. Walter A. Wycoff, author and sociologist.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to care for a Jerusalem cherry tree that was lovely in the fall, when I brought it indoors, but is now without foliage or fruit. I know the plant is being destroyed by insects. I did use one application of cold, soapy water and later one application of a tobacco preparation. Was this treatment correct? MRS. T. C.

It is likely that the warm, dry air of the house is responsible for the condition of your Jerusalem cherry tree. This plant before setting its fruit will stand a great deal of heat, but after it is in fruit it demands a cool, sunny place. At all times it should be watered every day. One application of any spray is of little use. To really be effective you should make a practice of spraying weekly. Usually cold, soapy water will cause the mealy bug or aphid to cease its activities.

Please tell me what to do to help the growth of a Christmas cactus. I have had the plant six months and I am honest when I say it hasn't grown one inch. I water it every day and give it plenty of fresh air. NATHANIEL M.

A Christmas cactus is never a rapid grower. However, a half cupful of weak liquid manure may help the good work along. Be sure to keep the plant in the sun.

Please tell me how to prepare the ground for day lilies. MRS. WILLIAM F. J.

Dig the ground to a great depth and enrich with manure. These lilies do best in moderately rich soil, where a good supply of moisture is available. They will grow either in sunlight or shade, but do best in partial shade, even in the northern exposures where very few other plants will grow.

Please tell me of a hardy perennial that will bloom even during protracted droughts. My soil is sandy and the location of my garden is sunny. I want a variety which can be started very early from seed which will bloom this coming summer. MISS HANNAH.

Gaillardia or blanket flower will do well under such conditions.

I have some helenium, commonly spoken of as Helen's flower. Should these flowers be transplanted frequently? GEORGE T. U.

They should be transplanted frequently, because they spread rapidly.

Do sedums require a sandy soil? AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

They usually prefer a sandy soil; at least, it must be perfectly drained in winter. As a rule, the sedums do best in a sunbeaten place, but they can sometimes be coaxed to grow in shade.

Can Adam's needles be grown by planting the suckers found about the roots of the old plants? MISS EMILY H.

Yes, this is one of the easiest ways of propagating these plants.

Please describe the culture of bleeding hearts. MRS. THOMAS McM.

As a rule, they are propagated from seed, division of the roots or from young shoots which start from the soil in early spring. These shoots or the roots should be divided just before they start to grow.

Will platycodon bloom the first year? A NEW GARDEN OWNER.

These plants nearly always flower the same season that they are planted.

TEACHING DEAF CHILDREN.

PROF. ROBERT H. GAULT has invented a new aid for teaching deaf people, and particularly deaf children. It is called the teletactor and it serves to aid the deaf to perceive and to interpret words and other sounds. In very low forms of life the ability to hear after a fashion is possessed by every cell. In the higher planes this ability becomes specialized in the cells of the ear apparatus and all other cells retain nothing but the rudiments of hearing capacity. This statement, left by itself, might lead one to think that Prof. Gault's teletactor enables one to hear with his fingers, but such a conclusion would be a great and misleading exaggeration. Here is another line of approach to another explanation.

The art of lipreading consists in watching the movement of the lips and mouth in talking and in inferring sounds and words therefrom. Or, in another line of approach, a smart deaf person can guess what is said to him by the attitude of the speaker, his gestures, and the expression of his face. Prof. Gault has given us still another method of interpreting the speaker to the deaf person.

The teletactor is a small telephone apparatus for transmitting the feel of speech from the mouth of the speaker to the fingertip of the deafened person. A cord runs to the pupil. He holds it with one finger on the button or diaphragm as the case might be. An electric current transmits the feel of the spoken word from the receiving diaphragm and reproduces it against the finger of the listener.

The instrument can be used with a single listener but it is more effective when a group of deaf children study together, each with his finger on the button of a receiving handle. In using this instrument for teaching classes of children the usual pedagogic methods are made use of. Words are written on a blackboard as they are spoken. The pupil sees the word, perhaps also a picture of the object referred to, hears as much of the spoken word as his hearing makes possible, notes the attitude and expression of the speaker, studies his lip movement and also feels his speech with the teletactor.

The benefits of competition among pupils and education by contact with fellow students are also made use of. The instrument and the method are still on trial and are not in general use, but they have been the subject of experimentation and research much of it practical, for several years.

SCABS FORM ON HANDS.

W. R. M. writes: A man in the middle sixties, in apparent good health, has for fifteen years or more had small, hard scabs form on the backs of his hands. They stick very tight, but in the course of a month or so they come off. The skin clears up for a while, when they come back and very slowly increase in number. They are not sore. Can anything be done about getting rid of them? REPLY.

This is probably a senile keratosis, a condition frequently found in elderly people. Treatment with radium will remove them, but as a rule it is not advised.

YOU'VE GOT YOUR GROWTH.

J. R. writes: Is it possible for a young man of 22 through exercise to grow taller? REPLY.

No.

MACKS SELECTED TO REPEAT BY 60 OF 65 CRITICS

Harvard Nine Overwhelms C. U., 21-4

Pounds 4 Hurlers for 18 Hits to Break Cards' Streak.

Aided by 7 Misplays; Ben Ticknor Slams 2 Home Runs.

HARVARD submerged Catholic University's previously undefeated nine under a 21-to-4 score in the Brookland Stadium yesterday afternoon, while one of the largest crowds to attend a college baseball game in this section in years watched the complete rout of the same Cardinal nine which looked impressive in four earlier starts.

Collecting eighteen timely hits and profiting by seven Cardinal miscues, the Crimson Clouters unleashed their vicious assault in the very first inning and continued to pile up tallies in big blocks as the game progressed. Four Cardinal hurlers, including Lou Hurley, the ace of Coach Chick Ganon's mound staff, fell before the barage of bingles laid down by the Harvard sluggers.

It was Big Ben Ticknor, of football fame, who really started the Cardinals on the way to their decisive defeat. Twice he belted home runs into deep left, his first capping a four-run rally in the first with a man on base, and his second coming in the third frame without a mate on the runways.

Marucci Slams Homer.

Marucci, diminutive Cardinal backstop, contributed the lone bright spot in his team's offense when he circled the bases in the eighth on a line drive to left center.

Batchelder, McGrath and Nugent shared hitting honors with Ticknor, and Dunn, with two safeties in as many credited times at bat, was the lone Cardinal in a hitting mood. Twice McGrath drove liners into the right-field stands which were good for but three bases under ground rules.

Rex, who went behind the bat in the seventh for Harvard, suffered a broken finger a moment after entering the fray.

Hurley, who turned back opposition in effective manner in previous starts, fell a victim of the Harvard attack in the first round and was never able to recover. Twice the Crimson team batted entirely down the batting order before he and his mates were able to retire the side. The invaders revealed the faculty of hitting when hits were needed.

Devens Goes Route For Harvard.

Devens, chief reliance of the Harvard hurling corps, worked the entire route, and although he walked eight batters, he was always safely intrenched behind a big lead.

Although the weather was most ideal of the season for baseball this spring, the Cardinals failed to show any invigorating effects either afield, on the mound or at bat. It did serve to bring more than 1,000 fans out for the one-sided fray.

MARYLAND U. NINE ROUTS CAROLINA

Milburn Allows Only 4 Hits in 14 to 1 Triumph.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S Baseball Team handed the University of North Carolina its first defeat in two years in the Tri-State League of the Southern Conference yesterday, when it uncorked a wild attack which overwhelmed the visitors, 14 to 1, at College Park.

It was sweet revenge for Maryland which was beaten 7-2 by the same team on Tuesday. The Terrapins scored in every inning except the third, counting the most heavily in the fifth and sixth when they scored four and three times, respectively.

Paul Cronin, sophomore outfielder, was the hitting star for Maryland, the flashy gardener having a perfect day at bat with three hits in the same number of chances. Cronin collected a home run and two singles, was walked twice and reached first once after being hit by a pitched ball. His homer came in the second inning with one man on base, giving Maryland a 4-run lead.

An unassisted double-play by Bob Gaylor, Maryland third baseman, was the fielding feature of the game. With Rand on third, Mauss hit a terrific liner directly over third base, but with a desperate lunge, Gaylor snagged the ball with one hand and with a slide equally as desperate, beat Rand back to third to retire the side.

Milburn Pitches Steady Ball.

Harry Milburn pitched a steady game for Maryland, allowing only four hits, all singles. North Carolina, on the other hand, used three hurlers in an effort to stop the power of the Maryland bats. Wright started the game but was knocked out in the fifth, and Edwards and Longest each hurled a frame, but without success.

Three singles, a walk, and a sacrifice gave Maryland two runs in the first and Cronin's homer made them 4 up in the second. After its only scoreless inning, the Old Liners went on rampage for the duration of the game.

Maryland Lacrossemen Expect Battle Today

University of Maryland's lacrosse team is expecting a hard, rough battle with Western Maryland at College Park this afternoon. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock and will follow a track meet between the Old Line freshmen and Baltimore Poly.

The Western Maryland twelve is made up almost entirely of the husky bunch of football players who won all eleven games played by the Terrors last fall, and the more polished Old Line stickmen are sure to run into plenty of body checking. They are expecting it, as it is a legitimate part of the game, and they are not likely to be disappointed.

36-Foot Putt on 18th Evens Match; Other Finalist Homans.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 11 (A.P.). C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ontario, Canadian champion, and Eugene Homans, of Englewood, N. J., played spectacular golf today to stroke their way to the final round of the North and South Amateur Tournament.

Somerville produced every trick in his bag to beat George Voigt, the defending champion, with a birdie on the nineteenth hole.

Homans had less difficulty in winning from James T. Hunter, of North Adams, Mass., 3 and 2.

Both matches were played brilliantly, an assortment of birdies and eagles brightening the drab par figures.

Voigt's Birdie Squares Match on Third.

Somerville was off to a good start, taking the first hole when Voigt overdrove the green and needed a five. A birdie three by Voigt on the third squared the match and they reached the turn with all square after Somerville had won the seventh and Voigt the ninth.

The second nine found Voigt hopping into an early lead by winning the tenth and eleventh with birdies, but Somerville calmly retorted by taking the twelfth and thirteenth, the twelfth with a birdie three.

Voigt produced par figures on the fourteenth to again take the lead when Somerville hit into a trap.

Both of them were fighting every inch of the way, and on the next, a short par 3 hole, each of them had birdie 2s. Then Voigt faltered and required 5s on the sixteenth and seventeenth, while Somerville was shooting in par figures.

Squares Match Again On Last Hole.

Voigt staged a remarkable comeback on the eighteenth, holing a 38-foot putt to win with a birdie 3; but Somerville, on the first extra hole of play, retaliated with a spectacular birdie 3 to take the match.

Hunter's first hole lead was short-lived. Homans took the second, fourth, sixth, seventh and eighth hole in quick order to give him a 4 up lead after eight holes. His fourth hole was won with an eagle 3.

Hunter, however, staged a comeback to take the ninth, tenth, twelfth and thirteenth holes, while the best Homans could do was to win the eleventh. At this stage Homans was only 1 up.

Putting on steam, Homans won the fourteenth and fifteenth and halved the sixteenth to give him the match.

Taylor's Homer in 8th Wins for Eastern High

A home run by Toby Taylor with two out in the eighth inning and two men on base broke a tie score and enabled Eastern High School to walk out of the Lincoln Park Stadium with a well-earned 6-3 victory over the Washington and Lee High School of Ballston. Taylor's blow came as a climax to a four-run rally which saw Eastern come from behind to tie the score and eventually win the game.

Held down by Rosenberry, opposing pitcher, who had given his team the lead in the seventh inning with a home run over the center-field fence, Eastern produced three hits in the eighth frame, which, with one walk, gave it the winning margin. With two out, Hayden walked and Snyder doubled, tying the score. Keesler singled, sending Snyder to third, and then Taylor came through with his timely clout, a hit into deep left field.

Eastern used three pitchers during the fray, although one of them pitched to only two batters. After Turner had turned back the visitors without a run in the first five frames, while Eastern was collecting two, Bernie Phillips assumed the mound, but, after he had pitched eight straight balls, was removed in favor of Dick Lanahan. Two hits enabled the Virginians to tie the score before Lanahan could retire the side. Rosenberry then hit a homer to give his team the lead in the following frame, just before the Eastern attack opened.

3 Night Games On G. U. Grid Schedule

List Home Attractions for Friday Night by Arc Light.

Increased Patronage Sought; Debut Only Afternoon Game.

COLLEGE football at night by arc light will be introduced in the Capital next fall by Georgetown University officials, who yesterday announced a rearrangement of the schedule to provide for three of the four home games to be played on Friday nights at Griffith Stadium.

The innovation is designed to strike a more popular response among Washington football devotees, who in the past have turned out in comparatively small numbers to witness the Hilltoppers' Saturday afternoon games. Georgetown athletic authorities believe that the games at night will be more attractive to the employed class and also will nullify the nearby Maryland races as a counter-attraction.

Play Mount St. Mary's In Afternoon.

The opening game with Mount St. Mary's is the only Saturday afternoon contest on the Georgetown schedule next fall. Although the change is in the nature of an experiment, Hilltop authorities have scheduled the major home game of the season—with West Virginia University—for a Friday night. This game, for the past several years the feature home attraction, was never able to draw more than 8,000 to Griffith Stadium on a Saturday afternoon.

The first night game of the Hilltoppers will be with West Virginia Wesleyan on October 10, with the West Virginia University fray following two weeks later. The Michigan State battle, the last of the home contests, is scheduled for the following Friday night, October 31.

The revised schedule follows:

September 27—Mount St. Mary's at Washington.

October 4, Loyola at Chicago; 10 (Friday night), West Virginia Wesleyan at Washington; 18, Western Maryland at Baltimore; 24 (Friday night), West Virginia University at Washington; 31 (Friday night), Michigan State at Washington.

November 8, Boston College at Boston; 15, New York U. at New York; 22, Villanova at Philadelphia; 29, Detroit at Detroit.

Rally by Western Fails; Geo. Mason Wins, 10-9

A belated rally by Western High School in the ninth inning yesterday at Alexandria, fell one run short of tying the George Mason High Nine, and the latter gave the Capital City team its second defeat in two days, 10 to 9. Entering the last frame, four runs behind, Western scored three times on as many hits, but was unable to shove the final marker across the plate.

Western hopped off to a 3-1 lead, but errors allowed George Mason to assume a lead in the third inning which it never lost. Bailey, Green, Albert and Payne served in the box for the losers, with the last-named making the best showing.

St. Alban Nine Rallies To Beat G. U. Prep, 6-2

St. Alban's Baseball Team continued in its winning ways yesterday, when it came from behind to defeat Georgetown Prep, 6 to 2, a 5-run rally in the lucky seventh being a feature of the game, on the St. Alban's diamond. For the second time in as many days, the losers were held powerless at the bat, collecting only two hits off the slants of Crouch, Saints pitcher, although one of them was a home-run by Outfielder Robinson.

Coming to bat in the seventh one-run behind, the home team forged into the lead on two hits and a flock of Prepmen errors, chasing five runs over the pan before the third man could be retired. After the fourth inning when Robinson hit his circuit smash the losers were unable to score.

While pitching steady ball, Pitcher Crouch led the attack of the winners, collecting two singles in his four trips to the plate. Brewer's home-run was also a feature of the St. Alban's victory.

Cambridge Favored Over Oxford Today in 82d Annual Boat Race

PUTNEY-ON-THAMES, England, April 11 (A.P.).—With their score tied at 40 victories each and one tie after more than a century of racing on the Thames, the Oxford and the Cambridge Varsity crews retired early tonight, each determined to make a supreme effort to win the "rubber" in their eighty-second annual regatta tomorrow.

Starting odds slightly favored Cambridge, whose boat is steered by the only American in the race, R. E. Swartwout, of New York. Cambridge has been victorious for the last six years.

The Cambridge advantage in weight is slight, however, with the Cantabs averaging 185¾ to Oxford's 174½. Compensating for this difference, Oxford has been adjudged to have the superior watermanship and is expected to fare better than its rival in rough water.

Seldom have England's famous old universities turned out two crews more closely matched in the advance reckoning. Oxford's eight figures to get away from the mark faster, but Cambridge's length and rhythm are counted upon by Light Blue adherents to overcome this advantage after half of the course of 4½ miles has been covered.

Kaye Don Postpones Speed Try Indefinitely

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 11 (A.P.).—Kaye Don, British racing champion, has decided to postpone indefinitely his attempt to break the world's automobile speed record of 231 miles an hour, and plans to leave for New York tomorrow afternoon, it was learned here late today.

It is understood that Don, after making numerous runs over the ocean speedway here, is of the belief that the car is not capable of breaking the existing record and is anxious to return to England to enter events during the British racing season this summer.

Louis Coatalen, the car's French designer, however, has expressed utmost confidence that the machine is capable of breaking the record and has urged Don to remain here until proper beach conditions obtain. He has spent approximately $250,000 in building the car and paying expenses of the proposed speed trials and has said he does not want to return to England until an official attempt on the record is made.

Miami Beach, Fla., April 11 (A.P.). High winds and ruffled waters of Biscayne Bay today prevented speed tests by Gar Wood with his Miss America VIII.

Wood has been trying for two weeks to attempt to better the world's record with hope of establishing a 100-mile-an-hour mark with his craft, but has been held up by various mechanical and weather adversities.

Orioles Pound Liska, But Nats Win

Brown's Relief Work Figures in Ninth Victory in Row.

Final Score Is 7 to 6; Cronin Gets One of 3 Homers Made.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BALTIMORE, April 11.—Ad Liska's pitching was disappointing to Manager Johnson here this afternoon, when the submarine twirler was pounded hard by the Baltimore Orioles. Fortunately Liska's mates gave him more runs than he granted, and Lloyd Brown, who climbed the hill, starting the sixth inning, was in fine form and had no trouble holding a slim 7-to-6 margin over the balance of the route, thus permitting the Nats to score their ninth straight victory.

The International Leaguers also called upon two flingers, Henry Wertz and Southpaw Bunnie Hearn, and both were ineffective in spots.

Three home runs and five doubles were made during the afternoon, with Ossie Bluege getting the only four-base hit for the Nats, while Joe Judge cracked out the Nats' only other extra baser. The Oriole sluggers were McGowan and Hauser, who shot liners into the right-field stand in succession in the fifth, while McGowan, Hauser, Solters and Stroner were credited with doubles. Joe Cronin obtained the most blows of the game, getting a trio of singles, two of which scored mates.

Grants Ten Hits in Five Innings.

Liska's work on the hill was not what might be termed a howling success, as he granted ten hits in his five-frame shift, of which four were doubles and two were homers, while all but one were packed into two frames which netted three runs each.

The Nats became 4 up by virtue of two-run rallies in the second and third sessions. Bluege's homer over the left-field wall with a mate on gave the Nats their start in the second, while the duo molded in the next round came from a pass and singles by Powell, Cronin and Judge.

Liska's first bad frame was the fourth, which saw the Orioles pull right up on the Nats' heels as a result of singles by Stewart, Sand and Linton, doubles by McGowan and Hauser.

Brown Fans Side In Sixth Inning.

The batters of both teams were busy in the fifth which netted each side a trio of tallies. Washington's came from singles by Goslin and Cronin, Judge's double, two walks, two thefts and an useful out, while homers by McGowan and Hauser and doubles by Solters and Stroner, all in succession after two were out, did the Orioles' damage. This was the last flare-up of the game, Brown granting but one hit while fanning four—the whole side in order in the sixth—during the last four frames.

MOLASSES JANE TAKES BOWIE HANDICAP IN GALLOP

Rueful Third In Reversal Of Form

Winner Draws Away to Beat Panda by Three Lengths.

Tarpaulin Outruns Glidelia to Take Second Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Branncastle Farm's Molasses Jane, with the heavy impost of 120 pounds, was the sweet morsel for the sharpshooters yesterday in the Bowie feature, the Joan Carter Waddell Handicap for fillies, which brought six to the barrier.

Admiral Grayson's Panda, making her first start of the year, was second, three lengths separating her from the winner and a length and a half from Rueful, the favorite, which was third and carrying the colors of Harry Payne Whitney. Tewsenelda was fourth, and Black Patricia and Easter were other starters. The time of the 7 furlongs was 1:26. The winner paid $7.10.

Among the large crowd looking at the race in a hot summer sun, shading their heads with newspapers or parasols, was Miss Waddell, for whom the race was named, who was invited to the stewards' stand to witness the running and who, with most of the crowd, had bet on the loser, the Whitney filly.

Molasses Jane was second choice, only because of the weight, she carrying 120 pounds, while Rueful had only 109, but a year separated the two in favor of Molasses Jane. Panda, a fleet filly by Peter Pan—My Dear, led the select field out of the chute, and then Tewsenelda rushed up, but in the meantime Molasses Jane and Rueful were moving up resolutely. When the horses swung into the stretch Molasses Jane was leading Panda by a length and a half, and the Grayson filly could not hold even that margin.

Poor Day For Favorites.

This was a bad day for favorites. They were bowled over as they came up, the form players getting no break until Hypnotism won the third. But the crowd went down en masse on the two Whitney choices, Rueful and Smear. Smear, by Mad Hatter—Paint Brush, was well liked by the stable, but while he broke fast and ran well for a short distance, he did not impress.

H. Ulverston, racing for Mrs. W. E. Martin, made a show of his field in the fifth race. Taking the lead from Calome early in the race, the Craigangower gelding drew away in the stretch to win by eight lengths. The Salubria Stable's Calome got the place by a length and a half from Naylor and Wayfarer was fourth. Prince Toy quit. The time was 1:48, a mile and a sixteenth.

The victory of Ulverston made a double winning for Jockey Cimerak. The winner paid $10.40 for $2.

Dixiana's Mucker Is Easy Winner.

The Dixiana Farm's Mucker led all the way to win the first race by a length with E. Steffen up; Edward Kane's Belli Casus was second, two lengths in advance of Politen, third. Rumor was fourth.

Master Star ran as if sore. The time was 1:26 for 7 furlongs out of the chute. Mucker broke fast and was never in danger. Belli Casus made up ground in the stretch. Politen, third in the Florida Derby, ran an even race.

There were fourteen horses started in the race, which was for 3-year-old maidens, and Belli Casus was the favorite. The winner paid $18.80 for $2.

C. F. Fisher, Detroit automobile man, owns the Dixiana Stud, where the son of Sweep—Valley of the Moon was bred.

Tarpaulin Coasts In Second.

The Nevada Stock Farm uncovered a good 2-year-old in the Benning Purse, second race, when Tarpaulin, a bay colt, by Supremius, won by a length and a half. The Rancocas Stable's Glidelia was second, and another length and a half back H. P. Whitney's Smear finished third. Prince Appolo being fourth in a field of a dozen.

Glidelia got off in front after a long wait at the barrier. Then in a few jumps Smear got in the lead, but before reaching the stretch turn Tarpaulin, M. Morrison up, was coasting out in front. Smear, which by the aid of a large amount of "come back" money, had been installed favorite, had no excuse. The winner paid $18.90, and ran the half mile in 47 3-5.

Sunview Runs Away In the Third.

Hypnotism was an easy winner of the third race, after Sunview had run away for a quarter of a mile when the field lined up at the barrier. Lindy was second, beaten four lengths. Valley was third, two lengths back, and Chattering fourth. The winner paid $8.90.

There was another long wait at the barrier, the field being held up until Sunview had been brought back to the line-up. Despite his breakaway, Sunview led for a furlong, when Hypnotism took command, with Chickweed next. Lindy came fast in the stretch to get second money. The time was 1:12 2-5, 6 furlongs.

Lena M., a field horse, romped off with the winner's purse in the final race at Bowie yesterday to assure the field followers of a $20.20 win mutuel, the largest win price of the day.

The Golden Maxim-Lady Rochester 4-year-old filly from the A. Dufauchard Stable, which had disappointed earlier in the meet, came a second time to defeat High Life by a head, Matin's Minister, the favorite, was third, beaten a length for the place.

Lena M. was reserved off the pace for the first three-quarters, with Torrence showing the way. Entering the stretch, Lena M. was shoved back, but Jockey Hanford brought her to the wire with a rush and just managed to get his mount up in time.

BOWIE NOTES

JOCKEY KELSAY, who rode Vander Pool in the Kindergarten, returned to New York. By his perfect ride, he got the best race out of the Campfire colt that horse had ever run. Kelsay believes Vander Pool will be near the top when the 1930 records for 2-year-olds are made up.

J. E. Griffiths will get into action with his strong stable at Havre de Grace, vanning the horses over to the Harford course when they have engagements. The stable is quartered at Pimlico. Harry Rites is trainer.

E. K. Bryson has received a flattering offer for Jimmy Moran, his Preakness candidate. The chestnut son of Lucky Hour worked a half mile at Bowie yesterday in 46 3-5. Jimmy Moran, with fourteen others of the Bryson string, will be sent to Havre de Grace today.

Ned O., gelding, being pointed for the Derby—geldings are not eligible for the Preakness nor the Belmont—worked five-eighths over the Bowie course in 1:01 2-5. This time, over which there was dispute, has been verified.

Howard Bruce, of Baltimore, owner of the steeplechaser, Billy Barton, which ran second in the Liverpool Grand National, and who has entered the fiat racing field with some good horses, was pleased Thursday by the showing of his colt, Royal Mystery, at Bowie, which ran second to Gigantic in a half mile covered in 47. Bruce reported that Billy Barton is doing fine and that he is using him as a saddle horse.

Charles R. Fleischmann, of New York, was a Bowie visitor. He said his French horse, Groom, is doing nicely, and was being pointed for the Saratoga Cup. Fleischmann raced Groom twice in France last year.

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE, favored by much good weather, an improved class of horses, large attendance and formful racing, ends its most successful meeting in the first half of its fifteenth year this afternoon. The final day will be marked by the renewal of the $5,000 added Spring Prince Georges Handicap. This handicap is run both in the spring and fall.

The crowd today probably will exceed that of last Saturday, but a larger crowd than that can not see the races in comfort.

FEATURE RACE—JOE MARRONE III, which won impressively at his first start at this track this season on Wednesday, easily defeating Cog Air, is selected to win the Prince Georges, at the weights, over DONNAY, whose last race did not do him any credit. The Rancocas horse carries 126 pounds, while JOE MARRONE has up only 113. DONNAY can not concede him 13 pounds on a fast track. MARRONE'S last race was merely a workout for the longer distance. DONNAY has raced hard all winter and been shipped over the country too much to be at his best. ULUNIU, while beaten in his first start at this track, will improve and probably finish in front of INCEPTION, the horse which defeated him. GREY COAT showed Thursday that he was coming around to good form, and he can go a route when ready, as shown when he beat Blue Larkspur last year in the rich Dwyer Stakes. SANDY FORD is outclassed.

FIRST RACE—LITTLE AMERICA, much better than is known, stands out in the first race for maiden 2-year-olds. She has not raced except one start in Florida. On her works at Bowie the past week, she was thought good enough to have a chance with the best. She is picked to win this dash. The well-bred SQUAB, from the H. P. Whitney Stable, is believed to be the contender, but he has never started. GOLDEN LEGEND, of the Dorwood Stable, ran third to Vanderpool, attracted favorable comment, and may be third. SCOTCH LASSIE, IMPETUS and others are well bred.

SECOND RACE—APOSTLE stands out in the second race. He won over a similar field a few days ago easily, except as to Dreams Lee, which made it a close finish. CORSICAN is rated the contender and has been going well. YEGGMAN may be closer than third. He is certain to be among the leaders.

THIRD RACE—FAIR CLASS will have SIGNOLA to beat in the third race. The latter was only beaten a nose and a head by Belmona and Chattahoochee on Wednesday. That race repeated would about match anything FAIR CLASS has done. MAINSHEET should get the short money. He has been knocking at the door.

FOURTH RACE—The Valor Purse for 3-year-olds is the secondary feature. It appears that this 7 furlong dash will narrow down to a duel between ZUBLENA and FRUMPER, and the first-named is selected to win with a good deal of doubt. Frumper was third to Annapolis in the James Rowe Memorial and this race may have put the Whitney 3-year-old maiden in good condition. ZUBLENA won her race easily. She is a quick starter and the two are equally weighted. BAKED APPLE should get third money.

SIXTH RACE—TONY JOE, which ran well in Florida and has done everything asked of him in workouts since arriving at Bowie, is picked to win the sixth race, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth. FRANK FULLEN, a winner a few days ago, should be the contender and probably a dangerous one. OLD TIMES or LIGHT VIEW will probably be third. The last named is improving in works.

SEVENTH RACE—Some hard luck horses meet in the seventh race. The two outstanding victims of bad luck are CHATTAHOOCHEE, in the money in all her Bowie races, but losing out by a nod. The same is true of the racing of LAURIE, but not so often as the filly has he been beaten. It was thought by many LAURIE had won the day he was second to Searington, but that was due to the angle. CHATTAHOOCHEE is picked to win this race, with LAURIE second and TALL GRASS third. This race closes the meeting.

Generals Win Meet; Sandifer, Speers Star

Lexington, Va., April 11.—Led by Capt. Sandifer and Algy Speers, record performers in the 100-yard dash and high hurdles, respectively, the Washington and Lee Track Team this afternoon took its third consecutive victory of the season, defeating North Carolina State, 73 1-3 to 52 2-3. Capt. Sandifer tied a 15-year-old record when he ran the century in 9 4-5 seconds, equaling the mark set up by Cy Young here in 1915.

Algy Speers, Southern Conference indoor champion at the high hurdles, raced over the tall timbers in the fast time of 15½ seconds, beating by a fifth of a second the mark set here in 1925 by Bill Davis. Despite these performances the Generals owed the victory to the work of the field men, who turned in four first places. Sandifer, with firsts in the century and broad jump and a second in the 220 and a third in the high jump, was high-point man with 14 points.

Errors gave Bridgewater their first four runs, while Will tied the score in the seventh by driving in two runs. Bergdoll, Shepherd shortstop, clouted the second home run ever made on the Bridgewater field, with one man on base.

Virginia Lacrosse Team Beats Randolph-Macon

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 11.—Virginia's Lacrosse Team registered its first victory of the season here this afternoon, defeating the Randolph-Macon twelve by a score of 7 to 5.

The Cavaliers were clearly outplayed in the first half, which ended with the Yellow Jackets leading by a two-point margin 5 to 3. The second frame was a bitterly fought battle and the Methodists made futile attempts to pierce the airtight defense the Cavaliers threw around their goal. After ten minutes of play the score was knotted 5 to 5. Neither side was able to count in the next ten minutes, but near the close T. Smith, who had returned to the fray after being relieved by Krebs, twice batted the ball through the uprights for the winning points. Trader and King were the outstanding players for Randolph-Macon. Their work throughout the first half was of a high order.

Temple and Navy Stage Warm Grid Scrimmage

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 11.—Football squads of Temple University, Philadelphia, and the Naval Academy, engaged in scrimmage workouts here this afternoon as part of their spring practice program. Teams were organized from both groups and went at each other with all the fierceness that would mark regular fall preparations. They alternated in carrying the ball in four periods, each of ten minutes' duration, and a like program will be carried out tomorrow.

Both Head Coach Bill Ingram, of Navy, and Miller expressed satisfaction over the result of the practice, declaring it would do the players a world of good. The Navy contingent is so pleased, in fact, that they are considering asking Temple to come to Annapolis again two weeks hence, before the Middies wind up their spring session.

"Lou" Kern, half back, and find of the Navy season last fall, showed much of his dashing play that brought about the defeat of Dartmouth at Philadelphia last November.

Hyattsville High Beats Woodward Nine, 9-7

Hyattsville High School's Baseball Nine rang up its fifth win in as many starts when it defeated Woodward School, of Washington, 9 to 7, at Riverdale yesterday.

Hyattsville got off to a 7-0 lead in the first two innings and was in front all the way, though Woodward rallied in the sixth inning to score four runs and knock Peffer from the box. French, however, who then assumed the pitching burden, promptly checked the visitors' uprising.

UTILITIES ADVANCE IN STOCK TURNOVER

Trading Exceeds 5,600,000 Shares in Somewhat Unsettled Day.

EASTMAN KODAK LOSES

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—The stock market was somewhat unsettled today, although speculation for the rise was pushed forward with increasing vigor in the utilities. Trading continued at a rapid pace, total sales again exceeding 5,600,000 shares.

The market opened with a bullish flurry in response to the small increase in brokers' loans, but the feeling persists in conservative quarters that the market has well discounted early business prospects, and around midday bears took advantage of the adverse psychological effects of the news of the closing of the Tokio Stock Exchange to launch effective attacks against popular trading shares. In the late afternoon, however, the market made irregular recovery, under leadership of the utilities. The price index of 90 leading shares showed a loss for the day of 6-10 of a point.

Important speculative circles, however, were unperturbed by the conditions in Japan, feeling that the situation in the Tokio Exchange was but a reflection of an unsatisfactory economic state of affairs that has existed in Nippon for some time and which will have negligible repercussions in world conditions generally.

Allied Chemical Up 16 Points.

Allied Chemical was a buoyant feature, selling up nearly 16 points to a new 1930 top and closing near its best level. International Harvester, Commercial Solvents, International Hydro-electric, McKeesport Tinplate, National Air Transport, National Bellas Hess Raybestos Manhattan, Remington Rand, Warner Quinlan and Southern California Edison were among shares moving up about 1 to 4 points to new highs for the year.

American Water Works and Standard Gas were pushed up about 4 and 7 points, respectively, and closed near the top, but Public Service of New Jersey and United Gas Improvement and United Corporation, which is heavily interested in both, all reacted on denial of the merger report, after reaching new tops for the movement.

Coppers Prove Heavy.

Coppers were heavy, as uneasiness over maintaining current copper prices grows. Calumet and Arizona and Kennecott sagged moderately to new low levels for the year. Eastman Kodak, Coca Cola, Gulf States Steel, Hershey Chocolate, U. S. Steel, Lambert and Vanadium were among shares losing 2 to 3 points. American Telephone sold up about 3 points, then reacted 4.

Commodities generally eased. May wheat lost 1¼ cents, and the latter positions were barely steady, reflecting further bearish weather reports. Corn also sagged. Cotton closed 35 to 85 cents a bale lower, reflecting a sag in the Liverpool market, which was affected by unsettlement in the Bombay and Tokyo markets. Coffee was depressed by reports that the proposed Brazilian stabilization loan would require liquidation of accumulated stocks.

Foreign exchanges eased a little. Sterling cables ruled ⅛ lower, at $4.86½. While Japanese exchange was highly unsettled by conditions in Tokyo, the rate was quoted at 49.35 cents, off only .05 of a cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 11 (A.P.).—Some moisture relief and indications of more tonight for drought-stricken grain fields Southwest, made wheat prices average lower today, especially toward the last. Besides, holders of the May wheat delivery, representing wheat already available for use, were persistent sellers today, and export buying of wheat from North America was small. However, there was increasing concern over lack of sub-soil moisture for spring wheat North and particularly in Canwest.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ⅛@1⅛ a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅜@⅝ down, oats unchanged to ¼ up, and provisions at a shade to 5 cents advance.

Despite early downturns of Chicago wheat values because of scattered rains in western Nebraska and northern Kansas, seather with sharp price breaks at Liverpool, active buying for leading commission houses brought about quick rallies and the market had a pronounced two-sided character during the rest of the day. No general rain was expected and reports indicated further abnormal hot, dry, windy weather would bring more material increased crop damage. Meanwhile, Kansas and Oklahoma authorities were quoted as admitting general deterioration of crops with some places reporting all sections perishing and many fields of wheat being plowed under.

A feature which attracted special notice among traders was a statement from a Chicago market leader that reports indicated a much smaller snowfall in the Rockies the past winter than usual. He said such a circumstance almost always presaged a dry season Southwest and in the Plains States West, and that although April was a month of showers it would require more than these alone to allay apprehension as to the domestic winter wheat crop. Another development was an authoritative unofficial summary showing that spring wheat acreage in Montana, North and South Dakota and Minnesota apparently would be decreased 10 to 15 per cent.

Corn and oats prices were inclined to sag on account of fine weather for field work in the corn belt.

Provisions, although easy at the start, turned firm later in response to higher hog prices.

BONDS VARY LITTLE IN QUIET TURNOVER

Coast Line 4s Advance 2⅝ Points in Generally Thin Rail Market.

OIL SHARES ARE ACTIVE

New York, April 11 (A.P.).—Bonds failed to develop a definite trend today in the dullest market of the week. The bulk of the trading was in comparatively few issues which moved indecisively.

Industrials received the best attention in some time, but offerings just about balanced the demand and net changes were unimpressive. Steel and oil company obligations turned over freely, with unusually large volume in Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s, Wheeling Steel 5½s, Shell Oil issues and Sinclair Crude Oil 5½s. Standard of New Jersey 5s equaled their year's high at 103¾. Goodyear Tire 5s failed to move on sales aggregating about $75,000 par value.

There was a slight firming in the money markets. Demand loans held at 4 per cent all day, while short term funds brought slightly higher rates. United States Governments held steady in the face of this tightening, but were very dull.

The more active rails included Atchison General 4s, Erie 5s, Louisville & Nashville 4½s, Nickel Plate A 5½s, Pennsylvania 4½s of 1970 and Union Pacific first 4s all unchanged to about one-fourth higher. In numerous instances the rail market showed thinness. Baltimore & Ohio gold 4s lost yesterday's 1-point gain on a minor sale, Chicago & Northwestern general 3½s sagged a point, Morris & Essex 5s rose 1, and Atlantic Coast Line first 4s advanced 2⅝, also unimportant transactions.

International Telephone 4½s, rising to the new 1930 high of 127¼, American I. G. Chemical 5½s touching 108½, also a year's top, and Remington Rand 5½s with warrants, were among the few stock option bonds that finished the day in higher ground. American Telephone 4½s, trading in a 5-point range, closed fractionally lower. Amusement bonds lost their speculative following and eased from 1 to 3 points.

Foreign obligations of both Government and corporation descriptions were firm throughout most of the day, but developed slight irregularity toward the close. Berlin City Electric 6½s, Deutsche Bank 6s and Bremen State 7s rose 3/4 to 1½. Oriental Development 5½s lost a point, Montevideo City 6s made a new high at 96¼. Kreuger & Toll 5s eased.

A Canadian syndicate was awarded a $4,250,000 Province of New Brunswick loan in 4¾s. The bid was 97.351.

RICHMOND RESERVE ADVISERS SELECTED

Stockholders' Group Picks H. H. McKee as New Vice President.

J. F. WHITE IS NAMED AID

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Henry H. McKee, president of the National Capital Bank, was elected vice president of the Stockholders Association of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, at its annual meeting in Richmond, Va., yesterday, and J. Frank White, cashier of the National Bank of Washington, was named District of Columbia member on the advisory committee.

Waldo Newcomer, Baltimore banker, was succeeded as president by F. F. Beattie, of the First National Bank of Greenville, S. C., former vice president, and George H. Keesee, of the Federal Reserve Bank, of Richmond, was reelected secretary. Besides Mr. White, other members of the advisory committee are W. D. Copper, Third National Bank of Chestertown, Md.; S. N. Boyce, First National Bank of Gastonia, N. C.; J. R. Turnage, First National Bank of Ayden, N. C.; Samuel H. Plummer, First National Bank of Newport News, Va.; O. Jay Fleming, First National Bank of Grafton, W. Va., and Burnell Sloan, National Loan & Exchange Bank, of Columbia, S. C.

The meeting was a most interesting one and many local bankers were in attendance.

Business Shows Improvement.

The amount of business for the week ended April 5 as indicated by volume of check payments was more than 20 per cent higher than in the previous week, but approximately 10 per cent lower than for the corresponding week of 1929, the weekly summary published by the Department of Commerce reveals.

The general index of wholesale prices was slightly higher than last week, but seven per cent lower than it was for the comparative period last year. The value of building contracts showed a decline of about 20 per cent from the previous week and was also less than for the corresponding week of 1929.

Lanston Monotype and National Savings & Trust Co. stocks made spectacular advances on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. An extra dividend of 25 cents per share was declared on Lanston Thursday, and ten shares came out yesterday at 117¼, quarter point gain. On a second sale of five, the price climbed another quarter and on a third of ten, it gained a half point. Then successive point gains were registered in the next two sales of ten shares each. On a final single share sale, the stock advanced five points to 125.

The trust company stock's rise was even sharper. It came out at 575, 10 point gain, on a first sale of five shares; rose to 580 on a second block of five, then receded a point on a closing sale of ten.

Globe Insurance Growth.

As an example of growth the record of the Globe & Rutgers Fire Insurance Co., as recapitulated in its annual report for 1929, still stands eminent among the yearly statements so far issued in the fire insurance field. As shown by the 1929 annual report, after its assets gained nearly $8,000,000, now amounting to $105,991,540, and after establishing more than usually liberal reserves, its surplus increased over $7,000,000 to $44,315,436. With the $7,000 00 capital the "G. & R." has a surplus to policyholders of $51,314,365.

President John B. Larner, of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., left yesterday for Hot Springs, Va., where he will spend a much-needed vacation, returning to this city week after next.

Among local banking officials contemplating attending the convention of the Association of Reserve City Bankers at Memphis, Tenn., April 28 to 30, are Robert V. Fleming, Wilmer J. Waller, A. M. Nevius and F. G. Awalt.

The annual golf tournament of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, to be played for the W. W. Spaid trophy, will be held the latter part of May.

THEATER CUTS RATE AS STUDENTS REBEL

Long Meeting of Virginia U. Leaders and Showmen Ends Satisfactorily.

DISTRICT BOY ON GROUP

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 11.—After a four-and-one-half hour conference with University of Virginia student leaders, the board of directors of the Jefferson-Lafayette Theaters Corporation, of Charlottesville, tonight, agreed to reduce admission charges to the Jefferson Theater to a standard scale. Tickets will be 35 cents in the afternoons throughout the Jefferson and at night 40 cents in the balcony and 50 cents downstairs. There will be no lowering in the quality of the films shown, the directors agreed.

Edwin A. Alderman, president of the university, appointed a committee of studens to confer with the theater managers. There were Louis Mackall, of Washington, D. C.; William Moncure, of Alexandria, Va.; Carter Myers, of Petesburg, Va.; Paul Sackett, of Lynchburg, Va., and John Sloan, of Richmond. This committee promised President Alderman that they would do all in their power to prevent any further demonstrations whether their request was granted or not. Students generally are delighted with the price reduction and ill feelings vanished, when word of the action was spread.

Theater directors who conferred with the students this afternoon were: Fred T. Wyman, president; Dr. Dan W. Haden, James H. Lindsey and George Walker, all of Charlottesville.

President Alderman tonight expressed his pleasure at the settlement of the difficulties and this will close the incident that began when the hundreds of students marched upon the theaters Wednesday night.

Fingerprint Law Wins, Despite Mayor's Veto

Special to The Washington Post.

It was the first time the executive's veto has ever been over-ridden and he has been mayor of Danville for 38 successive years. Mayor Wooding vetoed the ordinance because he held it invested the chief of police with too much power.

Hoover Lauds Memory of Thomas Jefferson

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday paid tribute to the memory of Thomas Jefferson in a telegram to Felix M. Warburg, of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, New York City.

"The noteworthy and most unusual coincidence that the religious holy day, known as Palm Sunday and Passover, both occur this year upon the birthday of Thomas Jefferson," he said, "makes it, indeed, appropriate that the anniversary, on April 13th, is to be observed educationally and patriotically with special emphasis upon founding of religious freedom."

Water Plant Measures Asked in Hagerstown

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 11.—George Bean, Philadelphia expert, engaged by the water commission of Hagerstown, has recommended that the city construct a new pipeline from the Edgemont to Smithsburg reservoirs and a coagulating plant at the latter, in order to preserve the city's supply of mountain water. Hagerstown has a new water plant on the Potomac River, but Bean recommended that preserving an emergency water source would result in reduced fire insurance rates, and also would reduce the cost of pumping water at the new plant.

The cost of the improvements was estimated in his report at $138,000. Bean is presenting his stand for approval to the Maryland board of health.

Rum Violator Is Given Choice of Term, Exile

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., April 11.—The "exile law" was brought into play at Yanceyville, N. C., near here today when C. B. Smith, alleged to be a habitual violator of the liquor law, and in whose home 104 gallons of liquor was found, was given the option of working twelve months on the roads or leaving the confines of Caswell County for the next five years. Smith was given until next Monday to reach a decision.

Judge Walter Winstead, who imposed the penalty, said this morning that the exile law, in his opinion could be enforced, but that no test of its constitutionality has been made in a court of record. Smith can evade temporarily the alternative punishment by appealing to the superior court which would precipitate a legal test.

TEACHERS CONVENE AT FALLS CHURCH

Conference Includes Schools in District H, Composed of Seven Counties.

FOOD SALE ANNOUNCED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The annual conference of the teachers of District H, which includes Alexandria City and Arlington, Culpeper, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William and Rappahannock Counties, opened yesterday morning in the Madison School in Falls Church. The teachers attending the meeting taxed the capacity of the auditorium of the school. O. L. Emerick, of Purcellville, Va., chairman of District H, and Miss Beatrix Clarke, of Manassas, secretary of the district, were in charge of the meeting.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. A. B. Altfather, following which Capt. John F. Bethune, Mayor of Falls Church, gave the address of welcome. H. T. Moncure, principal of the Alexandria High School, responded to the welcome for the teachers, after which several musical selections were rendered by the Falls Church quartet.

Robert W. House, president of the Virginia Education Association, made the principal address of the meeting. He outlined the general needs of the teachers' preventorium at Catawba, Va., stressing the need of a welfare board for the association to take care of this project. He stated that he did not feel that the present State teachers' retirement law was adequate and lauded Wilber C. Hall, delegate from Loudoun County to the State Assembly, for his efforts last session to have the law liberalized.

He also stated that the greatest need of the present was a full nine months elementary school term for every pupil in the State, urging that every organization should strive for this law, as it would better equalize educational facilities for all pupils. The teachers have the greatest future of any association in the State so long as they continue to be an unselfish organization and mind their own business of public education, the speaker said. If this is done the needs of the teachers will be fulfilled, as a matter of course, and they will not have to call on the State Legislature every two years as they are now doing, said Mr. House, concluding his remarks with the statement that "it was not political power the teachers needed to accomplish their work, but more educational strength in their own community."

The afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock was devoted to group meetings of the teachers of the high schools, grammar grades, intermediate grades, primary grades and one and two room schools. Among the persons addressing the different groups were Dr. J. O. Powers, of George Washington University, of Washington; Miss Kate Trent, of the State Teachers College, at Fredericksburg, Va., and T. Ryland Sanford, jr., State director of physical education. The groups also had discussions among themselves of questions peculiar to their own grades.

A short session of the Virginia Council of Administrative Women in Education in District H, with Miss Lula Metz presiding, was held in the afternoon from 4 until 5 o'clock.

The group meetings will be continued this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Each group will have a discussion of their greatest problems in which a statement of each teacher will be given. Mrs. Josephine White, of the State Teachers College, at Fredricksburg, will addrsss the intermediate group and Miss Dorothy Duggan, head of the art department of the same college, will explain "Drawing: What to Do and How to Do It," to the teachers of the primary grades.

At 11 o'clock the teachers will meet in general session and T. D. Martin, director of division of records and membership of the National Education Association, will address them. Henry P. White will lead a general discussion on "Free Text Books for Virginia." B. F. Walton, State director of local associations, will explain the work being carried by the local associations. The rest of the day will be devoted to the general business session.

A food sale will be held this afternoon from 2:30 until 5 o'clock in East Falls Church by the ladies of the Presbyterian Aid Society. The committee in charge of the sale will be Mrs. John F. Bethune, Mrs. E. L. McNair, Mrs. Mary Ryer, Mrs. John F. Trabold and Mrs. George Thompson.

The play is under the direction of Mrs. James Byrnes, of Chesterbrook. Miss Roma Saunders will furnish the music during the intermissions.

McIntosh and State Motor Vehicle Inspector McDermott on the Langley road. Charles Lee, W. F. Pendelton and W. W. Stout were fined $10 and costs and C. E. Clements $4 and costs by Justice of Peace Thomas P. Chapman at Fairfax.

The Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department responded to a fire early yesterday morning at the home of a party by the name of Fields near Ilda about 3 miles south of Fairfax on the Little River turnpike. The fire was confined to the interior of the attic. It was stated by the firemen that they believed this was a case of spontaneous combustion, as the blaze started in a pile of old clothes stored in the attic away from the chimney. The loss was estimated to be about $100.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was in the doldrums.

"Whassamattah now?" I asked, as she sat there looking for all the world like the statue of Grief.

"I've got th' blues——"

"Yeah?"

"Th' Easter and European travel blues——"

"Th' what?"

"You heard me the first time," she sighed.

Of course I heard her. What interested me was how she got that way. She confessed—the society columns.

"Well, whattuh you read 'em for?" I asked.

* * * *

SHE poked the page under my nose.

"It says here she pointed out, "that Easter and European travel are almost synonymous——"

"Almost? If they're synonymous they're synonymous. There's no almost about it. Now, what are they?"

She reflected: "They're synonymous!"

"By the way, Luella, what does synonymous mean?"

"It means," she flashed, "that at the Easter time European travel is at its height——"

"If that's what it means, then, they must be traveling to Europe by airplane this year."

* * * *

"WELL, everybody's going—but us," she complained.

"Yeah?"

For answer she started to read me the list: "The United States Ambassador to Poland and Mrs. John North Willys, who have closed their Palm Beach villa and are leaving for New York preparatory to sailing for Warsaw. The United States Minister to Finland and Mrs. Edward E. Brodie sailing for their new post on Saturday. The new AmHbassador to Austria, Mr. Gilchrist P. Stockton, and Mrs. Stockton and their small daughter. Mr. James W. Gantenbein, United States vice consul at Milan. Mr. Neil Neilsen, agricultural commissioner at Marseilles, and Mr. F. E. Sullivan, trade commissioner of the United States, and Mrs. Sullivan and family, who are going to London."

Luella paused for breath.

"Don't read any more," I pleaded, "you are breaking my heart."

* * * *

SHE mopped the tears from her eyes. "Then you know how I feel," she smiled, through her gloom, misery loving company.

"Yes, I know how you feel, all right, but not being connected with the Government I just can't do a thing about it——"

"And all I want to do is get on a boat, and go to Europe."

As she started into the second spasm, my eye hit the sports page: "How'd you like to go to Bowie, Luella, it's getaway day——?"

"If we can't go to Europe, I guess we might as well go to Bowie," she agreed, "anything to get away from this."

So we'll take a little trip, anyway.
